Research May Spark Interest In Burning Broiler Litter

BY JACK HUBLEY

EAST WATERFORD — Forest Muir likes his broiler litter well done. Shovel 100 pounds of litter into Muir's converted wood furnace, "bake" at 2,000 degrees, and presto, you have 12 pounds of ash.

For years the scientific community, aided by the extension service, has been preaching the value of manure as fertilizer. So how can the Department of Environmental Resources justify funding Penn State research aimed at sending valuable plant nutrients up in smoke? Two reasons.

First, broiler manure is worth about twice as much as a fuel source as a fertilizer. Assuming than liquid propane gas is selling for 70 cents a gallon, Muir calculates that broiler litter is worth about $70 per ton as fuel.

Second, some parts of the state, particularly Lancaster County, have too much of a good thing. According to Mitch Woodward, a regional manure management agent working out of the Lancaster Extension office, Lancaster County produces about 5 million tons of livestock manure a year. Woodward also points out that that amount of manure is enough to cover all four lanes of Interstate 81 to a depth of five feet from Harrisburg to Scranton. The county should actually be an exporter of manure, since it happens to be about 70,000 acres short of being able to spread the wealth at recommended amounts.

Assuming officials aren't interested in resurfacing interstates with the stuff, burning may be a logical alternative. "We need to look at some way to get that manure out of Lancaster County," Muir emphasizes.

Although much of the livestock manure produced today is in slurry

Penn State Poultry Science professor Forest Muir holds two pieces to the excess manure puzzle: a broiler chick and combustible broiler litter that may prove to be an economical heat source for broiler houses and other farm buildings.

US Committeeperson Hears On-Farm Comments

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

DALLASTOWN — The United States House Agriculture Committee sent a staff assistant to York County Thursday afternoon to hear what local farmers had to say about farming as it relates to what's going on in Washington. And on short notice in spite of lovely weather to get spring farm work done, 26 persons showed up in Charles Hess's Dallastown R3 machine shed to talk to John Conrad about the dairy herd buyout, sod busting, tax laws and the general farm situation that buys products for farm use made with $20 labor while receiving $5 labor on the farm.

Hess told Conrad that looking back, it's obvious that a lot of people would have participated in the whole herd buyout if they could have done so. "As far as the beef people, if the cows would have been marketed more orderly, it would not have hurt them. Now beef is going up, and cull cows are

Chester-Del. Co. Farmers Hear Morris

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Staff Correspondent

Pennsylvania Representative Samuel Morris (D-155) of Pottstown gave Chester-Delaware County Farmers Association members a rundown of pending agricultural legislation at Tuesday night's spring banquet. Morris urged farmers to write letters to Governor Robert Casey and House Speaker James J. Manderino (D-58) in support of the bills

Morris indicated that Representative Arthur Hershey (R-13), who was also in attendance, favored agricultural security areas, shifting the tax base from land, establishing an Animal Health and Research Commission, licensing poultry truckers and allowing more freedom in commodity advertising. "Help us help you," said Morris. "Write some letters, call on the telephone. We're always ready to be on the other end of the phone. Use this resource and get after us"

Morris especially pleaded for help for his bill, HB-442, whereby counties can buy conservation easements to "keep prime farm land from being turned into shopping centers" According to Morris, "The governor says it's a

A nice view of a Lancaster County farm taken from Scenic Road northwest of Intercourse. We take our pretty farm scenes for granted. But many people who have experienced urban development on their farm land lament the loss and warn that we must do something now to keep our scenic views, or they will be lost forever.

RCMA Needs Buyer Cooperation

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

LANCASTER — In order for the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency to work in the long run, all Class 1 milk buyers must be charged the same price, a dairy economist explained Monday night. James Fraher of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative pointed out several additional conditions which must be present for the program to work in the long run.

At Monday's informational meeting he noted the uniform price, which the current Federal Order system provides, is necessary to start all buyers on the same level for the system to work.

Second, Fraher explained, the premium payments, which the milk handlers will pay if RCMA becomes effective, must be seen by the handlers as necessary to ensure an adequate milk supply. When RCMA achieves a 95 percent enrollment of dairymen in the

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES. ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers Association Farm Management Services. ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed lower today pressured by slightly over bought conditions. The down turn in todays market was attributed to a lack of fresh fundemental news. Commerical buying was linked to Taiwan's tender for U.S. corn. Generic certificate traded today at 103.5% to 104.5.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures closed lower in quiet trading. Nearby options remain under pressure due to lower Gulf bids. Farmer selling is expected to step up overnight. Slight pressure was added on ideas of South American bean sales near term.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed lower in a light luster trading session. Traders are still hoping for a U.S. export bonus wheat offer to U.S.S.R. Commercial and professional bear spreading was noted throughout the session.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Cattle futures closed sharpley lower in nearby options. Long liquidation was the main factor in today's losses due to the approaching of the first notice day. Feeders closed mixed with March supported by the firm cash market.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT: $68,92 as of 3/24/87 + $.27

Estimated slaughter today was 126,000 to 129,000 compared to 122,000 Wednesday.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Hog futures closed sharply lower today. Traders are expecting increased daily slaughter due to hogs coming to the market after this weeks winter storm. Also weakness was attributed to position evening ahead of next weeks hogs and pig report.

Estimated slaughter today was 287,000 compared with 279,000 on Wed.

POULTRY MARKETS

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Mar. 26, 1987

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was moderate to good and generally sufficient to keep offerings in good overall balance. Inquiry for parts was mixed and selective. Dark meat items, particularly leg quarters, cleared with ease at steadier prices. Wings remained fully adequate and slow to clear in several quarters. Cutlets and breasts were at least adequate, and the bulk of trading was occurring at lower prices. Less than trucklot asking prices were generally firm at 45-52 cents. Live supplies were moderate to light at varied weights. The undertone was at least steady.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 3/26 1,959,000; Actual 3/19 2,035,000.

Last weeks top price was 65¢. Average price was also up from last week's sales. We thank our new buyer from Universal for helping to improve our market.

If you want to process your tobacco, make sure how and why you select the right company to process. Alex Parker Tobacco Co. is a future buyer and will help to improve our market. They are quite capable of selling this tobacco. They are a very credit worthy tobacco company.

We need new tobacco companies in our market. We at Paradise are doing the best we can to get this job DONE! If you sell tobacco on the farm it is because the buyers feel they can buy it cheaper from you there. If they tell you the auction can not supply enough tobacco for their needs right now, that's not true, because they can get all the tobacco they want if they bid for it.

Call us to find out what style of tobacco we expect to be in demand this week.

When sowing your new tobacco beds, it is important to apply Ridomil according to the LABEL. Two layers of muzzling will also produce earlier plants. Be sure that you inspect your tobacco that's still in the barn, to make sure it is not heating and spoiling.

OPINION

The Wrong Sow By The Ear

We just read the report that the Humane Society of the United States has printed 500,000 postcards showing a bacon and eggs breakfast with the caption, "The Breakfast of Cruelty." The cards are being sent to egg and pork producers and grocery stores. The printed message on cards received by members of the United Egg Producers stated, "Until the United Egg Producers establishes more humane guidelines for the care and housing of laying hens, I will not being eating eggs for breakfast."

We suppose the Humane Society is only concerned about the welfare of hogs and chickens though we would want to know what other special interest groups may be behind the attempt to disrupt the wholesome breakfast food supply of ham or bacon and eggs. But the real point can be made by us who are old enough to remember chickens outside of cages and hogs in large pens. Maybe that's when the phenomenon called "pecking order" was born.

But we still remember that bird in the low end of the pecking order scooting from one end of the chicken house to the other to get picked on the comb by every one of the hundred or so other laying hens within reach. You would think the cage bars that animal-rights activists say limit the movement of birds could also be thought of as protective shields from all the other hens in higher pecking order brackets.

In addition, we would guess that the multitude of pigs on modern American farms live "higher on the hog" than a huge percentage of peoples in underdeveloped countries or in ghettos of our crowded cities. While the terminology would not be correct, any way you look at it, these 500,000 postcards are "barking up the wrong tree." Though it would be better to say they got the "wrong sow by the ear."

Really in the end, what needs to be considered is the reality of what it means to "go to bed hungry" and to "have a chicken in every pot" not only on Sunday, but every other day of the week, too.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Dear Editor:

A public and formal declaration of Pennsylvania Farmers' Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation principles has just been released in Policy Book form. Pennsylvania Farmers' Association is a grass roots organization and a firm believer of Americanism. Our farmers policies are based on moral and religious ideas, individual opportunity rather than guaranteed security. There are guidelines on family, law enforcement, national security and property rights.

If you who read this letter to the editor are not a farmer but support PFA's or AFBF's objectives, you can become an associate member. Imagine what strength the group would have if you joined the 3.3 million members now in Farm Bureau.

To quote Paul Harvey who spoke at the AFBF Convention in January in California, "If AFBF would grow to 30 or 40 million members, AFBF could organize our disorganized majority against all our enemies, foreign and domestic."

Here in our Pennsylvania Farmers' Association we have the largest Blue Cross/Blue Shield group plan in the state with more than 10,000 of our member families using the service. This could be 40 or 50 thousand people. Group rates are 30 or 40 percent less than single rates and have better coverage. For this reason alone many members have come into PFA which is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Anyone who supports PFA's or AFBF's objective can become an associate member.

Sincerely
Mabel G. Bream
Adams County Information Director

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Be Aware of the LT Problem

It seems like there is always something showing up to keep poultry producers on their guard. Once again LT (Laryngotracheitis) is showing up in Lancaster County. It has been diagnosed in broilers, started pullets and layers so all poultry producers and supportive people need to be aware.

This means that we really need to maintain tight bio-security. A few important areas are (a) insist that sales people, deliverymen, customers and pick-up people absolutely stay out of houses, (b) provide obvious outside receptacles for feed slips, invoices and messages, (c) know your pullet source and their vaccination program, (d) do not visit other poultry farms and (e) control rodents – don't forget stray dog and cat control.

To Make Pastures Produce

The best way to improve your permanent pasture is to apply lime and fertilizer, practice rotational grazing and clip them regularly. This is quicker, cheaper and involves less risk than tearing up the old sod and reseeding.

Most permanent pastures have sufficient seed of desirable grass species. The only thing they need is a little tender loving care and the opportunity to grow, and to recover from grazing pressures. Thus, fertility and rotational grazing are very beneficial. The more paddocks you have, the better it is.

If your acreage is limited for your size herd, restrict the amount of time cattle and livestock are permitted to graze. Don't let them trample the grass unnecessarily by allowing them to roam freely over the pasture while not grazing. After a paddock has been grazed, it can be clipped to control weed growth and to keep the grass young and nutritious. This is also a good time to apply fertilizer and necessary herbicides, while allowing the grass to recover prior to being grazed again.

To Plan For Oat Planting

I know some farmers are considering the use of feed oats for planting this spring, but this may not be a good idea. Feed oats may contain quackgrass, bindweed and other weed seeds. Planting feed oats will generally result in lower yields. You also have the problem that any weed seeds planted will be a problem for years to come.

Keep in mind that high quality seed is the smallest part of producing a crop. So, saving a few cents by using inferior or weedy seed doesn't make mush sense. On the other hand, homegrown seed of varieties proven successful on your farm can be cleaned, treated and planted if the germination is 80 percent or better. You can place the seed in a tray with moist soil, cover with wet burlap and keep in a warm place. Then count the seeds that germinate against the total and determine the percent of germination.

To Provide Farm Security

Thefts and vandalism on farms is on the increase. This is very difficult to prevent because of the various items around farm buildings and homes; also the number of buildings and places to enter are many. However, we suggest that every farmer take some steps in protecting his machinery, tools, livestock and supplies. The automatic lights that come on at dusk and go off at dawn should be of real value in discouraging burglars. There are also many new sensing devices that detect movement around the premises.

Watch dogs are also very useful in detecting strangers around the property. Shops, garages and other smaller buildings should be kept locked when possible. The identification of animals by tags, branding and photographs is very helpful. It is also a good idea to mark all machinery and tools with a permanent ID number. The best number to use is your drivers license number preceded by DL PA (Drivers License, Pennsylvania).

Remember, Social Security numbers are non-retrievable so it's best not to use it. Farm thefts are on the increase so farmers should take steps to protect their property.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SAFETY FIRST?

March 29, 1987

Background Scripture:
Luke 22:31-34; 54-71

Devotional Reading:
John 18:19-24

One could make a good case in defending Simon Peter from the charge that he had betrayed Jesus. There is no question that Peter denied knowing Christ, not once but three times and unequivocally at that: "Women, I do not know him" (22:57). But one could argue that Peter did the smart thing, in fact, perhaps the only wise course he could have taken. After all, suppose Peter had said, "Yes, that's right, I was with him." Would that have saved Jesus from the cross? What good purpose could have been served? In fact, wouldn't such a confession from Peter and one or more of the others have caused more martyrs to die with Jesus? Wouldn't that have denied to the Christ the leadership he needed in the early post-Easter church? Wasn't it best for Peter to practice "safety first" and save himself for a life of apostleship?

HE WEPT BITTERLY

So far as we can tell from the Gospels, however, no one ever condemned Peter for his three-time denial of Christ that night. No one had to, for Peter condemned himself. It might well be argued that Peter wisely chose to save himself from a needless martyrdom, but Peter knew in his heart that his denial had nothing to do with wisdom, Peter "went out and wept bitterly" because he knew in his heart that behind his denials of Jesus was his fear and panic to save himself.

There are many times when we are faced with situations in which the circumstances are quite different from those faced by Peter, but in which the principle involved may be much the same. There are times when we realize that our discipleship for Christ may be better served by picking and choosing (if we can) the times, places and circumstances in which we will stand up and be counted for him. If we are to risk some kind of martyrdom for Christ, let it be over the most important kind of issues.

HE TURNED & LOOKED

But, if we pick and choose the crosses we will take up for Christ, ourselves about our motivations. If the decision rests on better discipleship, fine. But, if we are merely rationalizing to play for "safety first," then we are just as guilty as Peter was.

There is something else that we must learn from Peter's experience If we betray Christ—as Peter did by word and action—we are not consigned to condemnation, so long as we have the courage and honesty to admit that we have failed him and resolve henceforth to put Christ, not safety, first

Make Hardy Brand® your hybrid.

Make every kernel count.

On the Lawrence County, Pa., dairy farm of Tom McConahy Sr. and Jr., Hardy Brand hybrids have been part of the summer landscape for the past 20 years. And the father-son team likes the view.
"It's always nice and green and it stands heavy," Tom Jr. said. "Some people have said, 'My gosh, I never saw corn like that. "
The McConahys plant their 300 acres of corn exclusively with Hardy Brand, using 301XS and 370XS for ear corn and the new 760XS for silage. They figure their shelled corn yield equivalent at 125 to 140 bushels per acre.
In addition to performing well in the field, Hardy Brand continues to do the job after the harvest, according to Tom Jr. "Hardy corn dries down good," he said. "And one crib of corn was so clean for husking . . . that shows the quality of the crop."
The bottom line for the McConahys is the performance of the 160 cows and 100 head of young stock in the barns.
"If we don't get a good yield from our corn, then they don't eat," Tom Sr. said. "So far, they've been eating well."

Hardy Brand Hybrid Corns are varieties for these times, when reduced acreage and slimmer profit margins are your big concerns. We've built a strong reputation on our outstanding yields, superior standability and high disease tolerance. Get the best return on your investment. Go with Hardy Brand!

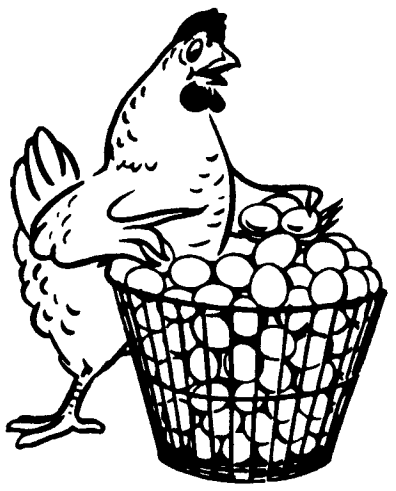
HESS MILLS

ACCU-LINE™ EGG WEIGHT PLUS

With EggWeight PLUS you get more egg size.



How it Works

Purina nutritionists have found that by changing energy sources while maintaining the ration energy and amino acid balance, these rations help

- Maintain feed intake
- Increase egg weight
- Increase returns

The Egg Weight Plus rations are fed exactly like the Accu-Lay products with the corresponding number according to average daily feed intake post-peak (or average daily in-house temperature pre-peak).

They are to be fed pre-peak, or after the appropriate Accu-Lay ration for "Increased Egg Size" has been fed when further egg size increase is desired.

The egg size increase resulting from EGG WEIGHT PLUS is over and above the egg weight increase achieved by the "Increased Egg Size" Accu-Lay ration.

What it is

The Accu-Line EGG WEIGHT PLUS feeds are optional Accu-Line rations that increase egg weights

- For young layers
- Heat-stressed layers
- Or, whenever increased egg weights offer profit opportunities

Accu-Line EGG WEIGHT PLUS is available as complete feed or as a concentrate.

District 5 Atlantic Dairy Holds Meeting

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LAMPETER — To show that the present merger of Lehigh Valley and Interstate into Atlantic Dairy Cooperative was not too large, Dr. Paul E. Hand, general manager, said that 30 years ago Interstate had 5,500 members compared with the 4,000 Atlantic members today and those members were scattered over a larger territory. "We hear questions about how big Atlantic is," Hand said. "The size is only relative. Not only is the new combined cooperatives smaller than one branch 30 years ago, the handlers that buy milk from Atlantic are also larger in size when compared to the new dairy cooperative. When people talk about an organization as too large, they mean the members are too far away from the directors and the management," Hand said. "We now have 32 directors instead of 26 in earlier times. That makes the ratio of members to director better now. And in the case of Atlantic, we are pledged to maintain that director/member/manager relationship that we've always had in the past. We want to make sure the members have input into the organization."

Hand told the District 5 meeting Monday in Lampeter firehall that over 90 percent of the membership approved the merger. And since both cooperatives had record earnings and record performance, the new organization was more easily formed under these circumstances.

J. Wade Groff, director, reported that the new Atlantic Dairy Cooperative was continuing the same kind of organization that dairymen experienced in the past. Groff complimented Hand on his ability to manage the cooperative, and said Hand will help us continue the success we have enjoyed in the former Interstate and the former Lehigh Valley cooperatives. "I trust we have faith in the cooperative," Groff said. "And we want to give you an opening to ask questions. We rely on the candid questions to help us to give direction to the cooperatve," Groff said.

To illustrate the progress that dairymen have made in promotional efforts, Groff gave the example of one retirement community where changes were put into the operation by the nutritionist. This resulted in a 35 percent increase in dairy product consumption. "They put in a soft ice cream machine as one of the perks to use more milk," Groff said. "And it's going great." In this particular institution, the consumption of fluid milk and cheese has increased greatly because of the promotional efforts related to calcium."

"These kinds of examples, I think are significant," Groff said. "If we can do our advertising to bring to bare on the consuming public, no matter where they're at--in kindergarten, middle age or older people in retirement--if we can do our advertising to increase consumption, we have a market we can be proud to support.

Ned Boy Daughter Tops Pa. On Parade Calf Sale

HARRISBURG — An August calf by Ned Boy topped the Pennsylvania Calf Sale Thursday by commanding the high bid of $2,700.

The 7-month-old sale topper is out of a VG-88 Valor daughter. "She's got a lot of leg and a lot of length," Horace Backus proclaimed as Wa-Del Ned Girl Zack-ET paraded around the ring to open the Pennsylvania on Parade state calf sale.

Zack's dam produced a first calf record of 21,308 pounds of milk, 693 pounds of protein, and 901 pounds of fat for a 4.1 test in 365 days. Nor-Vi Valor Zada is projected to produce a 3-year-old 305 day record of 21,645 pounds of milk and 954 pounds of fat. She carries a CTPI of plus 719. Her Cow Index stands at plus 836 milk, plus 46 fat and plus $122.

The next dam classified VG-85. Sired by Lime-Hollow Elevation Mars, she produced a high record of 22,640 pounds of milk and 912 pounds of fat for a 4 percent fat test. She is currently under contract to a bull stud and has placed five sons in stud services.

Her dam classified VG-85 and produced a lifetime record in 2,121 days of 133,130 pounds of milk and 4,564 pounds of fat.

The sale topper, consigned by Rick Wadel of Shippensburg, was purchased by D. Michael Hoover of Tyrone.

A deep-pedigreed December 1985 calf sold for the second high price of $2,300. Consigned by Kenneth Umble, Atglen, Glen Valley Mark Gretchen's pedigree traces back seven generations. The maternal half of the pedigree classified either Very Good or Excellent. Gretchen owns a PTPI of plus 512.

Sired by Walkway Chief Mark, she is out of a Wagnerscrest Ivanhoe Astronaut daughter. The Astronaut daughter, Glenn Valley Ivan Grand-Twin VG-86 produced a top record of 20,550 pounds of milk and 774 pounds of fat in 301 days.

The second dam classified EX-92 2E with five records over 22,000 pounds of milk. She produced a lifetime record of 168,285 pounds of milk and 6,457 pounds of fat for a 3.8 test in 2,799 days with a top effort of 25,049 pounds of milk.

R. Mike Mellott of Peach Bottom was the final bidder on Gretchen.

Paul and David Countryman, Berlin, consigned the third high seller. Landsdown Bell Milady sold for $2,000 to D. Michael Hoover.

Sired by Bell, the July 1986 calf is out of a Paclamar Astronaut dam, Landsdown Astronaut Minerva.

Minerva classified VG-87 as a 5 year old. She recorded a top lactation of 24,725 pounds of milk, 873 pounds of protein, and 1,050 pounds of fat for a 4.2 test. As an 8-year-old, her lifetime record to date stands at 127,224 pounds of milk and 5,322 pounds of fat.

The second dam classified VG-88 with a lifetime record of 103,845 pounds of milk and 4,430 pounds of fat. The next two dams in the maternal pedigree rated Very Good classifications.

Mansion-Valley Bova Jolly registered the next best price of $1,900. Consigned by Daniel Albright, Landisburg, the September calf owns a PTPI of plus 691.

The Bova daughter is out of a VG-88 Valiant dam. In her first record she produced 17,620 pounds of milk and 675 pounds of fat in 365 days. The next dam, an EX-90 EX-MS Elevation daughter, owns records up to 22,360 milk and 953 fat.

She was purchased by John McMillen, Loysville.

The sale averaged an unofficial $920 on 91 consignments. The event continued on Friday with 101 catalogued bred heifers and young cows slated to parade through the Small Arena sale ring at the Farm Show complex, Harrisburg.

Michael Weimer and Harry Bachman served as auctioneers for the two-day event. Jeffrey Harding, James Howes and William Nichol took bids while Horace Backus read pedigrees.

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association managed the sale.

Pa. Adds 19,000 Acres To Conservation Reserve

HARRISBURG – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has accepted 19,665 more acres on 458 Pennsylvania farms to be set aside under the Conservation Reserve Program, according to Eugene Thompson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Maximum bids in the fourth signup period will be $65 an acre in Pool 1, representing the southeastern part of the state, and $60 in Pool 2, representing the rest of the state.

Nationwide, 101,020 farms submitted bids on a total of 11,254,837 acres, and USDA accepted 10,572,402 acres into the CRP. Bids accepted ranged from $51 to $90 per acre.

Land entered into the Conservation Reserve, as directed by the Food Security Act of 1985, will be ineligible for farming for 10 years and must be planted with permanent vegetative cover.

Participants will receive cost share payments of up to 50 percent of eligible costs to establish trees and grass on acreage placed in the reserve. These payments will partially reimburse farmers for the one-time costs of establishing required conservation practices on the cropland.

Producers designated 1.9 million acres of corn base acreage to take advantage of a corn "bonus" rental payment that was offered to entice highly erodible land into the Conservation Reserve. The bonus, to be paid in generic commodity certificates, amounts to $2 a bushel, based on the ASCS program payment yield for corn for each acre of corn base accepted into the Reserve.

Farmland signed up to date totals 19,488,587 nationally, 36,09 acres in Pennsylvania. Thompson stated that these figures are acres for which bids were accepted.

Secretary Lyng also announced that the next sign-up period for Conservation Reserve Program would be July 20 through July 31. Additional information on CRP is available from ASCS and Soil Conservation Service offices.

higher than at any time I can recall. The buyout is working. But it was the first time, and you always have some things to learn," Hess said.

Another farmer said that a lot of pride goes into farms in this area. You can see this by the strip farming and other conservation practices. If you must cut your farm down by one third around here, you can't exist. Eight hundred bushels of corn bought a six ton truck in 1948. Now 10,000 bushels would hardly do it. In addition, we can't grow alfalfa on highly erodable land. We do that on our best land. And the sod buster bill penalizes farmers if they don't meet the stringent requirements exactly. A small mistake can cause them to lose their rights. This carries over to include other farms owned by the participant.

Conrad said that the sod busting and swamp busting bills were some of the most debated ideas in recent history. The feeling was that we must do something to preserve our very valuable farm land. To do this all farms will need to implement a plan. "I do not know what changes will be made. But there is a big debate about the alfalfa problem," Conrad said. "It's interesting that you had a conservative administration, conservative senator and a very liberal environmental group all working together on the sod busting legislation. Conrad listed the 1985 Farm Bill, Farm Credit and international trade as the big items in front of Congress today.

One local farmer wanted to know why we are so slow to put tariffs on exports. Retaliation was the word Conrad used though we have come a long way. The development of ethenal is an example. We got tough on imports in this area. About growth hormone, Conrad said that a lot of new technology oftens makes a lot of new problems. As far as dairy product imports, farmers said that we need to meet standards that are higher than farmers in other countries who ship products into our market.

Another concern of the local farmers was the investment credit depreciation and capital gains breaks that were lost in the new tax bill. Conrad did not see any changes in the near future.

On marketing loans where the producer makes a loan from the government and pays back the government whatever price he gets in the market place was called a budget buster. Also the complaint was raised that the food stamp program is figured in the ag budget, which may not give a true picture of the cost of the agricultural bill to the taxpayer.

Lynn Selmser, legislative assistant to Congressman Bill Goodling, made arrangements and accompanied Conrad to the local farm.

Hieb Addresses Erie Co. NFO

BY CAROLYN GILLES
Crawford Co. Correspondent

Clare Flynn welcomed over 100 guests to the Erie County NFO dinner meeting Thursday, March 19, at Char-Broil Pit and Pub in Edinboro, PA. He introduced New England NFO Representative Jim Buelow and Northeast Representative Joe Paris. Paris spoke briefly, saying that he wished he had a bucket of water to show that it was actually possible to do the impossible — hold a bucket of water upside down over his head without spilling it. If he swung it around, centrifugal force would hold the water in and not a drop would spill. Flynn used the illustration to show that it is sometimes possible to do what seems impossible. Flynn said that farmers may believe that they can't do anything about situations like the price of milk. But to effect change, said Flynn, they must work together. The secret is that they must "quit going to the marketplace alone." There are those who would like to keep the farmer confused and disorganized, but, said Flynn, if farmers would work together as a group, with one voice, they could sell for the price they want.

The main speaker for the evening, Jane Hieb, national Women's coordinator for NFO, continued in the same vein. Mrs. Hieb first set the crowd at ease with tales of her airline misadventures while traveling across the nation to speak to various organizations on behalf of the plight of the farmer. Then, in contrast, she spoke of the heartbreak of families forced to sell their family farms. Although she said that we may not have felt the full brunt of it in NW PA, the farm crisis is very real nonetheless. She said the farmers have been involved in what she called "the most massive act of charity known to mankind" and they "can't afford to be this gracious forever."

Hieb called this the "Decade of Decision" for the American Farmer. She said that we have treated our farmers just like we have treated the rest of our natural resources, and that, like our other resources, the farm wouldn't be missed until it was gone. Even city folk will eventually feel the ripple-effect of the loss.

Mrs. Hieb said that we lack a sense of history and reminded the group that "if we don't learn from history we are doomed to repeat it." The control of the land will fall into the hands of the few. Many, she said, have written the eulogy of the family farm. Hieb said, "Government programs cannot cash flow agriculture." She stated the need for "people power."

Hieb, who admitted that the NFO is sometimes looked upon as a radical group, said that radicals have brought about a lot of changes in this nation. She cited the spread of rural electricity as "the most magnificent example of a grass roots movement."

In reducing the NFO philosophy to simplest terms, Mrs. Hieb compared it to watching her children play a game of Monopoly. The game is usually controlled by the oldest child who makes up the rules as he/she goes along and doesn't necessarily play fair, but always wins. While the younger ones may protest, it doesn't occur to them to band together and control the rules with their collective power. She said they put up with the unfairness "because they want to play so badly." Said Hieb, this is the same game farmers play in the marketplace — a marketplace that she described as "sophisticated and ruthless."

Mrs. Hieb says that as she travels around rural America, the faces she sees are different but "so much the same." She expressed a love for rural America. Though working for the NFO takes its toll from her family life as wife and mother of eight children, Mrs. Hieb said that she "likes the idea of getting out and making something happen." When she brought her eight babies into the world, she promised to love them forever. She promised them a better world. She said that she can't do that if she stays home in Wisconsin.

Hieb kept the group amused with humorous tales of stress on the farm — stories that seemed all to familiar to the audience. She then called humor "a magic corrective" when times are rough. Said Mrs. Hieb, "No matter what, I will build a shelter around the soul and spirit of my family, so that my children will grow up and still believe in love and compassion and free enterprise."

Mrs. Hieb is a monthly columnist for The National Hog Farm magazine. She was recently awarded first place in the "regular column" category of the Livestock Publications Councils' annual editorial contest. She has worked as a reporter for a daily newspaper, editor for a regional NFO newsletter, a point representative at the NFO Independence, Wis. Collection Point, and a representative of NFO as one of 11 charter members of the Ford Tractors Agricultural Women's Council. She presently serves on the board of directors for the Buffalo, Wis. Rural Electric Cooperative. She and her husband operate a family hog operation in western Wisconsin. They are the parents of eight children.

Lancaster Co. Farmers Honor 'Ag Baby'

In recognition of Ag Day, Friday, March 20, the Lancaster County Farmers' Association presented a commodity basket to the family of the first baby born in Lancaster County.

The happy parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Keith, 1317 Clayton Road, Lancaster. Their first child was born at 7:16 a.m., and her name is Cameron.

Included in the commodity basket were Lancaster County products: apples, honey, dried corn, chow chow, relishes, applebutter, snack foods, and gift certificates for dairy products, cheese, eggs, or milk. The basket was woven and large enough to be used as a bassinet or washbasket.

Lancaster County is the 11th most productive county in the United States. Of the $576 million total cash receipts from agricultural products 9 percent was generated by field crops, vegetables/potatoes, fruit, and horticulture; 91 percent was received for meat animals, dairy, and poultry commodities.

In the state, Lancaster County ranked first for alfalfa hay, all hays, cattle on farms, all chickens, cows in milking herds, corn for silage, corn for grain, tobacco, number of farms in county, hogs and pigs, milk production, and egg production. It ranked second for barley, wheat, and peaches produced, third for sheep and lambs; fourth for potatoes and mushrooms; and fifth in soybeans.

The Lancaster County Farmers' Association is an 1100-family member organization and is a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association.

PSU Dairy Judging Contest Set For April 4

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Penn State Dairy Science Club will sponsor a dairy judging contest April 4 at the Ag Arena as part of the university's Dairy Expo.

The contest, which will begin at 9 a.m., is open to 4-H and FFA teams in Pennsylvania. Participants will compete in one of four divisions — FFA, collegiate, 4-H junior, or 4-H senior. Thirty to 40 teams are expected to compete.

Contestants will judge four groups of animals in the morning, break for lunch, then give reasons in the afternoon. A free lunch will be provided.

Preregistration is encouraged but not required. For more information, contact Crystal Pheasant at 814-231-8235.

RCMA Meeting Held

Northeast, it will negotiate with the handlers for over-order milk payments for its member dairymen.

The Atlantic economist cited a need "to have an agency that controls virtually all the milk in the market." This control will place the agency in an effective bargaining position, he said.

Fraher noted the final need for over-order pricing to work in the long run is an effective policy making organization which can agree with dealers on reasonable prices. He explained that the maximum price the agency could charge would consider the price a handler would pay for an alternative milk supply plus the cost of transporting that milk to the respective handler's processing plant.

The market plays a large role in the group's ability to bargain for higher milk prices, he explained. "As we look at this type of program we need to look at the market. Buyers must agree a need exists to ensure an adequate supply of milk in the long run," Fraher said.

A handler who has a large block of milk which is not under RCMA's control could hamper over-order price negotiations, said Harold Ely, RCMA program coordinator in Pennsylvania. The handler could create a readily available alternative milk supply for other dealers by opening his milk supply to the general market.

RCMA would only divert milk from a handler if the handler refused to pay over-order prices on a RCMA member's milk, Ely explained.

He noted some independent dealers are impeding the RCMA sign up efforts by discouraging their shippers from signing contracts. He cited one dealer who allegedly has been threatening producers with a lost market should the producer sign a RCMA contract.

In a phone conversation Wednesday, a spokesman for the milk dealer answered the claim saying, "That is absolutely untrue. What we have been doing is talking with producers and suggesting they look carefully at the contract and organization before they sign."

He labeled the decision to join RCMA an "important and significant business decision." Dairymen should have as much information as possible before signing a contract that is going to influence the way they market milk, he added.

The milk handler's policy on RCMA is neutral, the spokesman said. He added, the company will continue to market milk that meets company standards whether or not the producer is a member of RCMA.

He confirmed an statement made Monday night that the milk handler has retained the services of a recently retired fieldman to travel to producers' farms. His meetings, however, has been informational not threatening. The spokesman stressed the fieldman's position is not to discourage dairymen from signing RCMA contract. The fieldman will be explaining the program to producers to help them make the best possible business decision. he explained.

Ely explained the agency does not want a confrontation with handlers. Nor is it the intent of the agency to put any handlers out of business by charging exorbitant over-order prices. The prices will fit the market, he said. Some months it will not be possible to bargain for higher prices because of a large milk supply available on the market.

"When fall comes, in my opinion,...we are going to see one of the tightest markets we have seen here in the Northeast," Fraher predicted. At that point there will be an opportunity to bargain for over-order prices.

Robert McSparran, president of the Mid-Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency, said, "It may be more important to try to hold the price of milk at its present level." MACMMA is the agency formed by the four cooperatives in Federal Order 4 to negotiate for over-order prices.

Ely pointed out that the projected 1987 price for milk is the same price farmers received in 1979. "You have lost in the price and the consumer is getting a bargain," he said.

Using numbers supplied by Dr. Lew Mix of Agway, Ely noted the increased price for fluid milk will not adversely influence milk consumption. Between 1985 and 1986 the Class 1 price fluctuated by $1 per hundredweight and consumption of fluid milk was maintained at the same level.

Ely estimated membership in RCMA at 95 percent in the New England states. In New York the sign up is near 95 percent. Pennsylvania lags behind with an estimated 80 to 82 percent sign up. He noted the agency may consider it a go when it controls nearly 95 percent of the milk in the Northeast as opposed to its present goal of 95 percent of the dairymen.

The Lancaster County Extension sponsored the informational meeting on the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Monday evening at the Farm and Home Center.

"We are trying to give factual information so you can make up your mind," Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension agent, explained as the purpose of the meeting. "The Extension's position on the subject is neutral," he added.

Valiant Son Tops Irish Holiday Calf Sale

BY NANCY KUNICK
Crawford Co. Correspondent

MEADVILLE – Quality calves from excellent bloodlines were the 'pot of gold' for buyers at the Irish Holiday Sale March 21.

The top of the lot was LF-Queens-Manor Valid-ET. The year old bull commanded $6,000 and went to United Breeders, Ontario. Valid was one of three bulls sold from the Leadfield Glamourous Eve cow. Classified EX-92, she produced a 5 year old record of 40,309 pounds of milk and 1,452 pounds of fat. This Valiant son was consigned by Queens-Manor Holsteins, Leadfield Associates, and Gayle Carson.

Two females shared the limelight by selling for the high bid of $5,600.

LF-Queens-Manor Fortune-ET was sired by Mel-est Valiant Irose Melvin and out of the Eve cow. She sold to Obsession Haven Holsteins in Iowa. The white heifer was consigned by Queens-Manor, Leadfield and Carson.

DT-Queens-Manor Ballero-ET, a November calf, was the second lot to claim the $5,600 bid.

This calf, along with DT-Queens-Manor Ballarino-ET which sold for $5,000, are offspring of Cherry Brook LTD Balboa. Balboa took the championship at the Pennsylvania Holstein Show in September 1985 as a senior 2 year old and was nominated for the All-American 2 year old honor. Classified VG-89 EX-MS, she has a 31,745 pounds milk record to her credit. Carson, who read pedigrees, said of Balboa, "I just saw her yesterday and she looks great...she'll be one of the greats."

The two Sweet-Haven Tradition daughters were consigned by Queens-Manor, David Dowler and David Thomas.

One other consignment broke the $5,000 mark, a full brother to the Balboa heifers. DT-Queens-Manor Rocky-ET sold to United Breeders.

According to sale manager Ed Doeberiener it was "a real good sale" with many of the animals going out of state. Buyers came from Canada, California, Florida, Iowa, Wisconsin, Maryland, South Carolina as well as the neighboring states. He speculated 75 percent of the animals went outside of Crawford County.

The sale totaled $146,300 on 86 head for an average of $1,701.16. The consignments included six males with the rest being calves or yearlings.

The sale was sponsored by the Crawford County Holstein Club and held at the county fairgrounds.

Guernsey Breeders Elect Officers

SHARTLESVILLE – The Berks-Lebanon-Schuylkil County Guernsey Breeders Association held their annual dinner meeting recently at the Shartlesville Grange.

Officers re-elected include: Jerry Krone, president; Carl Hollenbach, vice president; David Smith, secretary; and Robert Smith, treasurer. Ray Stoltzfus and Miles Hollenbach retained their director positions.

William Zollers Sr. reported on the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders state meeting held March 7 in Pittsburgh. Zollers, chairman of the National Guernsey Breeders Convention, encouraged the group to attend the convention slated for the Sheraton in Pittsburgh, May 21 to 25. Sherri Zollers detailed the youth activities planned for the national convention.

Lee Yost, business manager for the Pennsylvania Guernsey Association, explained the activities of the state group and the sale of the Guernsey Barn in Lancaster.

Millie Linde Widmann concluded the program with a slide presentation on her trip to the World Guernsey Conference held last year in Australia.

Farm Philosophy

By Newton Bair

Soaring Over The Hill

It may come from reading too much science-fiction. In my wild imagination there are human colonies on the moon, Mars and Venus. The view must be spectacular from outer space. Think of all the worlds like our planet that may exist. Could they be even more beautiful than Planet Earth in springtime?

I doubt it, but wouldn't it be nice to find out?

No, you don't have to be on "coke" or "grass" or hard cider. You can get "high" from the anticipation of Spring, brought on by pruning the old apple tree, repairing the garden fence, and sticking some onion sets into the fall-spaded ground, even if it's still too wet to dig. The grapes are pruned and tied, even though the birds and the beetles got most of last year's crop. There's something about this time of year that won't let you give up trying.

Springtime makes me feel a little like an insect coming out of its cocoon. There's a whole new world out there to be seen and enjoyed. Spread your wings and soar away, over the Quitapahilla and the Swattie, on beyond Governor Dick's mountain, to whatever is hiding in the cool valley beyond. I can't see it, but I know it's there.

There's a real advantage in being "over the hill," whether in age or in the heights of youthful wanderlust. It gives you a chance to look both ways.

Youth, with most of life still ahead, has very little to look back upon. What lies ahead is largely unknown, full of mysterious anticipation and sometimes tainted with fear.

But from the heights of soaring maturity one can also look backward to the well-known events that cannot be denied or forgotten. An occasional peek in the rear-view mirror gives a clue to what lies ahead. Both time and height gives the rear-view a much broader range.

I can understand the joy of the glider pilot, the balloonist, the mountain climber, the moon walkers, and all those who venture into the unknown. Their only link to the solid past is an occasional glimpse of the base established by earlier adventurers. While their sight is on the future, they can't get along without the simple and solid groundwork of the past. They lend a new meaning to the phrase, "over the hill."

What are the antidotes to the fear and anxiety of those who dare to venture where "Angels fear to tread?" Curiosity, hope, and a lust for the new and unknown helps to cast fear aside. A certain small percentage of the human race also has an urge to conquer and master and dominate. The race is strengthened and knowledge is increased by aggressive behavior, except that history is unkind to the tyrant. Whether in science, politics, or sports, the winner soars above the crowd. There is a strong urge to be "number one."

In sports, the rules don't change, just the final score. The laws of science and of nature don't change either. Our understanding of science and nature does change and grow. But it takes a lot of stretching and soaring and climbing, to see the far horizons and score the winning points.

Springtime makes us want to stretch our neck a little higher to look over the hill. There's something good and wonderful over there, and there's no way to find it without a little burst of power, even though the old back creaks and legs wobble. But happily, the imagination and the curiosity are in working order, so don't keep them from soaring!

Getting "over the hill" is better than giving up the climb.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

- A Jamaician elementary school principal is visiting the vocational agriculture department of the Solanco High School this week. He is Clemen B. McBeam of Albert-town, Jamaica.

McBeam said that although there is a vocational agriculture program in the public schools of Jamaica now, it is not similar in many respects to the one in the United States. The chief difference is that vocational subjects are taught in the elementary schools rather than in the secondary ones.

- Stuart Patton, associate professor of dairy science at the Pennsylvania State University, will receive the $1,000 Borden Award this year for achievement in the chemistry of milk. Dr. Patton will receive the award April 8 during the 131st national meeting of the American Chemical Society in Miami, Florida.

- A seasonal warning against the dangers of winter dysentery in cattle herds has been issued by the American Foundation for Animal Health.

This condition appears to be growing more serious each year, the Foundation reports, with the next two months marking the peak season for outbreaks, especially in cattle which have been housed most of the winter.

- A sale unlike usual sales will be held tomorrow at the Ralph S. Hertzler farm near Morgantown. For every dollar bid at the sale, $20 worth of food will be sent to needy persons overseas.

The sale, which starts at 11 a.m, is being sponsored by Mennonite Relief Committee.

- The dispersal sale of Warwick Farms Shorthorns Tuesday was in some ways a disappointment and others very satisfying. The major disappointment is, of course, that such a fine beef cattle herd is lost to Lancaster County.

The satisfying aspect is that a majority of the cattle are staying in Pennsylvania. This includes 10 head sold to Lancaster County farmers.

The 65 head of cattle averaged $268.50 with the five bulls averaging $392 and the 60 females averaging $258.40 each.

Maple Lawn Tops Carroll-Baltimore DHIA List

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

PLEASANT VALLEY, Md. – Maryland Maple Lawn Farms, Inc., owned and operated by C. E. Iager and Sons, walked away with five of the seven trophies awarded to producers in the Carroll-Baltimore Dairy Herd Improvement Association's testing area.

Maryland Maple Lawn Farm topped the list of the 10 high herds in butterfat production, milk production and protein production for 1986. Charles Iager received the trophy for highest butterfat production at 789 pounds. Burning Broiler Litter form, broiler as well as turkey litter, composed of sawdust, shavings and manure, have proven to be readily combustible. And there are enough potential BTU's in Lancaster County's 45 million broiler chickens to pump a significant amount of low-cost heat energy back into county farms.

The broiler houses themselves are in need of supplemental heat, Muir points out. The normal grow-out period is seven weeks, with heat required for two to three weeks of that time, depending on outside temperatures. Since only about one-half of the litter from a flock is needed to provide heat for the next flock, the poultry scientist notes that broiler-produced heat could also be used for drying grain or heating other farm buildings.

Muir also points out that the availability of lower cost heat might even improve the broiler industry's efficiency. "If we had a fuel source less costly, we might put more heat into that (broiler) building, which should improve the performance of the birds," he speculates.

Muir's incineration project is located on the John Noss farm near East Waterford in Juniata County. The incinerator itself is a converted wood furnace, stoked automatically with broiler litter from a 600-pound capacity cylindrical hopper that fuels the furnace for about 12 hours.

A flex auger transports the litter through a 5-inch diameter PVC pipe to the top of the furnace, and a photoelectric cell shuts down the auger when the litter rises to a level in the furnace that breaks the beam. Heated water is piped into the bottom floor of the 40-by-120-foot broiler house where it circulates through a 43-by-60-inch radiator. A 26,000-cfm fan drives air through the radiator and throughout the house. Muir figures the unit should heat two of the building's three floors.

Though the system shows promise, there are some bugs to be ironed out. At present most of the problems center around the fuel feed system. A stray rock can stop the auger, and the litter itself must be at the proper moisture level to move freely through the conduit. Even though the litter will burn properly at up to 40 percent moisture, says Muir, it fails to feed properly at moisture levels above 30 to 35 percent.

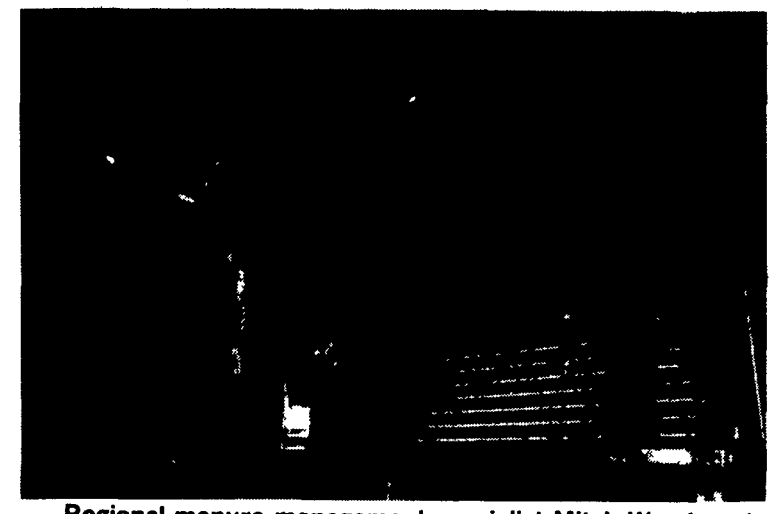
The poultry expert also points out that more research needs to be done on the by-products of the combustion process. Muir concedes that he knows little about what's going up the flue, although he knows nitrogen is certainly one of the components, since it does not remain in the ash. The ash is high in phosphorus and potassium and could prove valuable as a fertilizer.

And with phosphorus being a relatively expensive component in the birds' diet, Muir believes the litter ash might be put to good use as a feed ingredient for both layers and broilers.

Muir figures it will be a few more years until incineration will be a viable alternative for disposing of broiler, as well as turkey litter. Meanwhile, broiler production is expected to increase 6 percent this year, on top of a 5-percent increase in 1986. Even more dramatic is the turkey industry's projected 15 percent expansion on the heals of a 1986 production increase of 14 percent.

If Forest Muir's incinerators ever do find employment on Pennsylvania farms, it's not likely that they'll suffer from frequent lay-offs.

Muir's converted wood furnace burns about 50 pounds of broiler litter an hour. In seven weeks grow-out period broilers will have produced enough litter to warm up two incoming flocks for required two to three weeks.



Regional manure management specialist Mitch Woodward check heat coming from litter-powered radiator in broiler house.

Raw-Milk Producers Hold Annual Meeting

MALVERN — The 46th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Raw Milk Producers-Distributors Association was held at the Camphill Village, Kimberton Hills recently.

Camphill Village is a 400-acre dairy farm, worked and managed by its 120 residents, 50 of whom are handicapped adults. The farm holds a raw milk permit, and is virtually self-sufficient, producing most of its own vegetables, fruit, grains, meat, and livestock feed.

The Pennsylvania Raw Milk Producers-Distributors Association on includes dairy farmers from all over the state. Its membership boasts a veterinarian and his wife from Long Island, N.Y., who hold a New York state raw milk permit, and are presently milking three Jersey cows.

The membership is varied. The common denominator is the state-issued and state-monitored raw milk permit held by each member. At present, there are 79 raw milk permits in Pennsylvania. Not all of the permit holders are members of the Pennsylvania Raw Milk Producers-Distributors Association. The only requirement, other than a permit, are annual dues.

In order to obtain and maintain a raw milk permit, a producer must adhere to the most stringent standards set by the state. The dairy is inspected several times a year by a state inspector, and the milk is sampled by state approved laboratories bi-monthly and must pass several specific tests for coliform, bacteria, and somatic cell counts. There can be no antibiotics in the milk.

Anyone wishing further information about the Pennsylvania Raw Milk Producers-Distributors Association may contact Joseph C. Stump, president, or his wife, Glendora M. Stump, secretary, at Stump Acres Dairy Farm, R.D. 10, Box 455, York, Pa. 17404, 717 792-3216.

sale averaged $15 more than last year and five more animals were sold this year.

Steve Andrews auctioneered the sale.

HOLSTEIN

The FIRST NORTHERN OHIO TRUE TYPE HEIFER SALE averaged $1,000 on 60 animals which ranged in age from senior 2 year olds to intermediate calves.

An intermediate yearling sired by Kanza Matt Tony sold for $4,000, the high price of the sale. She has a full sister which was named high honorable mention All-American junior calf in 1985. A second full sister by Triple Threat sold to a South American buyer for a five-figure price last year.

Her dam, an 85-point Elevation daughter, produced a high record of 24,440 milk and 875 fat in 365 days. She owns an incomplete lifetime record of 120,000 milk and 4,239 fat. The next two dams classified Very Good.

The second high price of $2,800 came on a fancy senior yearling by Valiant. She placed first in the senior calf class at the Ohio State Fair in 1986.

Her dam classified VG-85 EX-MS. Sired by Lucky Royal Star Admiral, she produced a high record of 18,076 milk and 597 fat. The next dam classified VG-88 EX-MS. The third dam rated a Very Good score

Bud Gleisner co-managed the sale with Bob Binger. Gleisner noted they decided to start the sale in response to a strong demand for show animals at the last year's state sales which sold animals with primarily high indexes and poor type. The strong type animals, he added, sold well at the state sales.

J.O. Fenstermaker auctioneered the sale.

The URBANA SPRING CLASSIC held in Ohio averaged $1,485 on 53 head.

Topping the sale with a bid of $6,100 was a July 1986 calf sired by Walkway Chief Mark.

The ELKHORN NATIONAL AND HOMESTEAD SALE held in Wisconsin averaged $2,011 on 90 head. This average is $300 higher than it has been the past three years.

A 4 year old sold for $14,000, the high price of the sale. Sired by Pawnee Farms Arlinda Chief, she owns a Cow Index of plus 364 milk, plus 49 fat, plus 13 protein, and plus $109. She produced a top record of 23,350 milk and 1,216 fat for a 5.2 test in 348 days. Bred in October, she will freshen in July to Mandingo.

Her dam, a VG-86 Elevation daughter, produced a high record of 22,554 milk and 1,467 fat for a 4.4 test as a 6 year old in 365 days.

The second highest price of the sale, $13,500, came on 5-year-old daughter of Elevation. Classified EX-91 EX-MS, she completed a high record of 24,670 milk and 1,343 fat with a 5.4 test in 359 days.

Chester-Del. Co. Farmers Hear Morris

good idea but where is he going to get the money?"

Action to save Pennsylvania's threatened farm land south and east of the Blue Mountain will take action from all sides, including the legislature and the administration, Morris stated.

The legislator also discussed the amendment to the new rabies law and the resolution that calls for hearings on the school milk bill. According to Morris, reports have reached the House Agriculture Committee that milk has been left on school loading docks until it has turned sour. "That's not a very good way to promote the selling of milk," he said.

Al Bartels reported to the members that the Farmers Association Board of Directors has had one meeting with Chester County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (S.P.C.A.) over the incident where a Southern Chester County farmer was arrested and prosecuted for killing a rabid-appearing dog in his barnyard. Bartels said the farmers group is trying to set up another meeting to resolve problems. If that isn't possible, they will proceed with litigation. Bartels gave the Rabies Hotline telephone number, 1-800-692-7254, for reaching the Summerdale testing laboratory.

Bartels also reported that membership in the Chester-Delaware Farmers Association numbers 647, including 36 new members.

President Elmer Mast and Diana Hoopes reported to the group on the "Right-to-Know" law conference at New Cumberland last week.

Linda Hicks told of last November's successful Farm-City Week, which she co-chaired. She asked for volunteers to open their farms to the public this year.

The Women's Committee asked for young people to participate in the June Youth Conference at Bucknell University and the Safety Poster Contest.

Information Director Marshall Haws called attention to publicity on the "bum rap" farmers have been taking for water pollution. Other annual reports were given on farm management and by the advisory council.

"For the work they did," newsletter editor Janet Robinson and Stanley and Kathy Guest of District 9 were presented gifts.

Mime John Bell entertained the group after dinner at the West Fallowfield Christian School near Cochranville.

CORN AGAIN BEATS SUGAR IN SWEETENERS—Corn based sweeteners again are expected to outpace sugar in per capita consumption in the U.S. If so, it will be the third straight year that sweeteners made from corn have captured a larger share of the market than refined sugar. In 1975 each American consumed 89.2 pounds of refined sugar and in those days, before high fructose corn syrup had become widely used, each person used only 27.5 pounds of corn sweetener annually. Now, corn sweeteners have soared to a per capita consumption of 66.5 pounds compared to 63.3 pounds of refined sugar consumed per person.

AG COMMITTEE ROAD SHOW TAKES MORE LAPS---Field hearings which found members of the House and Senate Agriculture committees in five Midwestern states and in the Southwest will soon extend into Georgia and North Carolina where legislators will be listening for any signs of discontent with the current farm bill. Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) said he expects to hear farmers urging continuation of the 1985 farm bill's major provisions.

PAYMENT LIMITATION RULES GET REVIEW---Department of Agriculture officials were asked to clarify the rules regarding farm program payment limitations to individual farmers. Rules concerning who qualifies as an individual eligible for payments under the various income support programs have been in effect for a number of years, but are subject to some interpretation. Complaints have been increasing as some local ASCS offices have been more stringent in appliying the rules than perhaps the law intended, indicating, Farm Bureau told the ASCS, that some clarification may be needed to improve understanding by farmers and ASCS office personnel.

GRASS SEED FOR COVER CROPS IN SHORT SUPPLY—The heavy demand for grass seed to plant on conservation acres coupled with a poor harvest of seed last season will cause supplies to be tight and expensive, said Roger Mussetter of the USDA's Soil Conservation Service. Some suppliers report their sales about double the usual amount at prices more than twice as high as a year ago.

WEED EATING BACTERIA MAY REPLACE SOME CHEMICALS—A new technique may one day reduce or eliminate the need for chemical weed killers, according to Robert J. Kremer of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service. His studies concern new natural enemies of weeds, bacteria that attack both weed seeds and seedlings without harming crops. Called rhizobacteria, the weed eaters live in the soil and produce enzymes that rot weed seeds by overcoming their natural defenses. In laboratory tests the rhizobacteria have attacked velvetleaf, jimsonweed, pigweed and morning glory, four pests especially troublesome to row crop farmers.

The new cure for weeds is to be field tested and much remains to be learned about it, but Kremer thinks the bacteria will eventually be a commercially feasible method of weed control.

Dear Editor:

RCMA (Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency) is making very good progress in membership in the Northeast. Dairymen have an excellent opportunity to be in control of establishing an "over-order price" for their milk.

The Northeast is closer to being united than ever before. It is up to those few Independent milk producers who have not yet signed an agreement, to do so in order to make RCMA successful. Let's all get together and help ourselves. Don't expect government to do something for us.

We have one chance to be successful at getting an "over-order price." RCMA must control enough of every handlers' milk so he will be willing to pay the "over-order price." Every handler will be treated equally so one will not have an advantage over his competition. We are being careful to see that we are operating legally.

In the near future, we will be holding regional meetings to elect Directors to represent Independent producers on the Board of Directors of RCMA. If you want to have a voice as to who represents you, you must be a member. So hurry and sign an RCMA agreement.

The time is now! We need every Dairymens' support to be successful. There is no risk in signing an RCMA agreement. There will be no assessments on milk checks and handlers will pay producers the same as always. Operating costs of running RCMA will be deducted from the "over-order price" — not from any farmers milk check.

Edward Anna (716) 344-1463, our Executive Director and Harold Ely (717) 278-1259, are doing an excellent job of administration and completing the membership drive. To obtain information on RCMA or a contract for membership, call or write the RCMA office: RCMA, 26 Harvester Ave., Batavia, NY 14020, (716) 344-1463.

Let's all do our part to help RCMA be successful and sign an agreement!

William G. Zuber
Dairyfarmer and
President of RCMA

Dear Editor:

I was disgruntled with some of the remarks by our 1986 Pork Queen, Kristi Nash. She says she hasn't heard any negative attitudes about the 100 percent checkoff. She apparently doesn't read all the opinions in the "Reader's Forums" in all the pork magazines we all as pork producers get in the mail.

She says hog prices are up! What does she mean they are up? I think they are where they should be. Why should we as farmers work for nothing, other industry doesn't. And they don't work seven days a week, 12 to 16 hours a day either.

She says, "Corn is going to get there. We need to be patient." After 31 years of farming, I am wondering when it's going to get there. Seems like it gets worse every year.

She says we can see our checkoff dollars at work. Yes, I look in the meat case and see boneless pork tenderloins for $3.99 a pound. Who can afford to pay a price like that? Let the middle man advertise the product he puts in the meat case, not take it off the farmers' checks. According to Article 1 Sections 8 and 9 of the Constitution of the United States, it isn't legal.

By the way, Kristi Nash is going to be a nurse. I suppose she can't make a living producing pork.

Hilda M. Blatt

Dear Editor:

You have asked for dairy input. I am going to give you my opinion of the over-order pricing of milk to the farmers, better known as the R.C.M.A., Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency. Since to ship my milk I have to sign an agreement to abide by the laws etc. of the co-op., I have no personal say as to the intellect of policy of the co-op. They explain how it is to be, and when a member proposes questions, they refer you to someone else so you receive an answer.

Dairying is the no. 1 industry in Pennsylvania, I am strictly a dairymen. I have no ambition for publicity, nor am I a politician.

I feel if the R.C.M.A. goes into effect, the dairy industry of this area, especially Pennsylvania will go the way of the steel, textile, auto, shoe, large machinery and other industries. You cannot market a product above what the consumer will pay as long as imports are cheaper. Already the butter market is being flooded with England's butter replacement.

Farmers all over the nation thought they were really achieving success when they sold high producing dairy cattle abroad. Those same cattle or offsprings can push imports into this country at lower costs to consumers than the American farmer can produce and market it.

Turn the coin over and look at the other side, if the consumer will not substantiate the over-order demand and imports don't carry through the only alternative is to lower the price at the farm. Coops. are for the over-order as they have the most to gain.

Take for instance the Lehigh Interstate Merger. Lehigh has millions of dollars to turn over to producers, what they aren't saying is that this is the farmers' money, withheld in equity over the years. What they aren't saying is where the monies were held and what happened to the interest.

There is always another road the Co-ops' will take, "we can't sell the products because we don't have enough money for advertisement," so they will put assessment up for advertisement this naturally from the farmer. Every road they take will intimidate the farmers, especially if one agency controls the entire northeast. Don't expect me to believe that representation of Directors means a thing, they either have to or they do as management of the organization demands.

Speaking of demands, why not modify the federal order if there is justification for consumer supply and demand?

Are there any other farmers in the same position with no say, but deem it is a necessity? It may not be a threat at present, but what about future generations of farmers, our children and grandchildren. A meeting could be scheduled if enough are interested. Please write or call me at (717) 833-5371.

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest the article on page one about Vintage Sales and Robert Frame Jr. It seems odd that the farmers would not rally together and stop this taxation without representation ourselves.

Now that someone is going to test this checkoff in court, I think every farmer needs to give all the support they can muster to support Robert Frame Jr. Be it in letter form, money, physical or letters to senators.

It is time we farmers tell our elected officials in Washington and Harrisburg to butt out of our business.

Now serving you from five convenient locations!

We Keep Production Lines Going.

Besides hard work, it takes management skill and good instincts to run a farm. The right amount of sunshine and rain doesn't hurt, either.

Yet, by and large, a farm runs on money. And between harvests, money has a way of running short.

Farm Credit helps farmers meet operating expenses with production loans. For everything from seed, fertilizer and chemicals to labor costs and tractor tires. Production loans can also stock the fish pond and feed the feeder pigs.

And because livestock and crops don't grow to suit a payment schedule, we adjust yours according to your cash flow.

Unlike some other lenders, Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the farmers who use its services. Which means we're always here for farmers. Not just when it suits our profit needs.

So if you're in line for a production loan, the most productive thing you could do is call us.

Master Gardeners Wear Green Thumbs, Dirty Knees With Pride

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK — So you like to garden.

You enjoy thrusting your hands into the earth, watching seedlings push their first green leaves through the soil, tasting the freshness of vegetables direct from the plant to kitchen, and sharing bouquets of fresh-cut flowers.

The Master Gardener program is looking for you.

While the Master Gardener program is relatively new to Pennsylvania, this volunteer corps of devoted horticulturists has been spreading the message of seeds and soil in some parts of the country for several years. It is a program developed by the Cooperative Extension Service to train gardening enthusiasts as leaders and resource people for community horticulture support networks.

Less than one year ago, York County became the fourth area in the state to establish the Master Gardening program, joining groups already operating in Berks and Monroe counties, and in the city of Pittsburgh.

"It started out of a need in the county for home horticulture assistance," according to Tom Becker, York Extension horticulture specialist. "The program gives good visibility and support to the Extension Service. Our master gardeners visit homes and answer questions that we would otherwise respond to from our office."

Becker adds, however, that training of Master Gardeners does take a commitment, both on the part of the participants and the Extension staffers working with the program.

Trainees agree to take part in 30 hours of classes, scheduled over approximately 10 days. In turn, they volunteer 30 hours of community gardening-related service during the year following their training, in projects determined by them and Extension staffers.

Would-be Master Gardeners initially fill out an application form and then take an examination, primarily to determine "where they're at" and their key interests in gardening.

York Master Gardeners and trainees are currently assisting with the Black Locust program, a 4-H forestry project designed for use with fourth grade elementary school students. Among those taking the project to local schools are, from left, Chris Moran and her daughter Sarah, Master Gardener Katherine Weiss, Pat DiBerardine, and Nee Nan Linnert.

Vegetable culture is the specialty of Master Gardener Fred Hahn, whose corner lot is cultivated intensively to food production plantings. Even though mid-winter, Hahn harvested his carefully tended plots, pulling leeks, a member of the onion family.

Extension horticulture agent Tom Becker, left, and Master Gardener David Craun check for emerging buds on dogwood trees used in landscaping around the county offices. Craun, a county planner, signed up for the Master Gardening program both to learn more about gardening and as a way to volunteer time back to the community in service.

York's first Master Gardener class formed last July, with five members. In turn, some of them are now working with, and helping to teach, a second class of 10. In the future, Becker anticipates the scheduling of an evening class, since many individuals interested in the program are not available for daytime meetings.

Class subjects cover a range of horticulture-related study subjects. Technical gardening information delves into topics such as pest management and pesticide safety, soil fertility, pruning techniques for ornamentals and fruit trees. Communications skills also get considerable emphasis, since a large part of the Master Gardener program involves working with and teaching others. The operation of overhead, movie and slide projectors, working with radio and television programming, and writing garden-related articles are other areas covered in classes.

"Our Master Gardeners are multi-talented people," Becker says, with praise for the enthusiastic volunteers. "Many are teachers and want to stay in some sort of teaching."

After completing their 30 hours of community work, trainees are awarded their Master Gardener certificates from Penn State's dean of agriculture.

Using nature as her ally, Katherine Weiss roots azalea and rhododendron cuttings in her "Crystal Garden." The ordinary glass jars upturned over the cuttings stuck in a peat moss and sand mix protect the hard-to-root cuttings in their shaded beds until they develop infant rooting systems.

Katherine Weiss was York's first official Master Gardener and has received her certificate of program completion. An enthusiastic supporter of the program, she has answered numerous questions for area gardeners, devoted many hours to the farm operated by York's Rehabilitation and Industrial Training Center, and worked with a variety of community activities.

"I got involved for my personal enjoyment and as my way of doing something for the community," says this enthusiastic, good-humored, veteran gardener.

Long an admirer of Longwood Gardens, Katherine laughingly dubs her suburban York home, located on a lovely wooded lot, "Shortwood." Rhododendrons and azaleas are her specialties, an interest she traces directly to an early childhood fascination with watching the large rhododendron buds unfolding into blooms. Soils at her "Shortwood" site are naturally acidic, with outcroppings of rock ledges, lending themselves ideally to these species.

The craggy, hillside setting of the Weiss home has been divided by Katherine into garden sections, living memorials to people and places she chooses to honor. A large picture window looks out over her blue and white theme planting of azaleas, rhododendrons and spring bulbs. An all-white section honors the city of York, while red-blooming species go in an area set aside to pay tribute to Lancaster. Favorite colors of close friends brighten still another portion of this garden, where the old leveled base for the former York trolley line forms a handy walkway.

Cuttings are started in Katherine's "crystal garden," glass jars upended over slips of her favorites among the rhododendrons and azaleas. Cold frames of old window sashes, a small vegetable patch and recently added lily garden round out the diverse interests in this wooded setting, registered as a national wildlife yard.

Each year, Katherine experiments with at least one new gardening venture, broadening the knowledge that she readily shares with a growing number of contacts, who learn of her gardening abilities and leadership mostly by word-of-mouth.

Fred Hahn, also a "graduate" of that first Master Gardener class, is something of a vegetable-growing expert. In an urban neighborhood where lawns tend toward expanses of grass framed by familiar shrubs, Hahn's sloping corner lot is a contrasting demonstration of the practice of intensive cropping.

A retired engineer, Hahn spent 13 years in Europe with a consulting firm. He and his wife specifically rented homes there with garden plots, and he incorporates many European intense-gardening practices into his present setting. Vegetables and strawberries are grown in terraces, fruit trees are espaliered along one wall of the Hahn's brick home and compost piles constantly recycle garden wastes.

Although Hahn originally planted much of his 300-square-feet garden plot to grapes, his interest in viticulture has taken a backseat to a variety of food-producing plantings. And, while other gardeners are paging through catalogs and daydreaming of tomatoes, Fred Hahn is still harvesting fresh leeks, cleaning off the asparagus bed and tending sturdy seedlings of celery and celeriac started New Year's Day under lights in his basement.

Perennial beds, a section for annual cutting flowers, and a hillside green with groundcover and the shoots of hundreds of emerging narcissus are also incorporated into Hahn's plantings. Experiments with new plant materials and constant fine-tuning of plant locations and varieties keep this Master Gardener abreast of the newest and best in gardening to share with others.

Hahn — who even grows his own backyard Christmas trees — first learned of the Master Garden venture in a newspaper article and contacted Becker for more information, mostly "out of curiosity." He has assisted several homeowners with pruning problems, gives talks at garden clubs and recently helped set up a booth for the Extension Service at York's annual business fair.

He philosophizes that, as the country's economy slows, the general public will turn increasingly to backyard gardening for fresh food supplies at affordable costs.

"You feel a lot better physically, too, when you're out working in a garden. I think once people experience that, more will become serious gardeners. And there are just not enough Extension people to handle the volume of requests for assistance," Hahn says of the role Master Gardeners can play.

York Master Gardener "graduates" and trainees are currently working with a variety of projects, both youth and adult oriented.

An Arbor Day ceremony is planned at York's downtown Colonial Courthouse, with a young tree to be planted on the historic property. Intensive gardening demonstrations are planned later in the spring at the Kiwanis Lake park. And, several gardening volunteers are making final plans for working with local elementary schools to conduct a 4-H environmental awareness project, the Black Locust program.

In the Black Locust program, Master Gardening representatives will visit elementary school fourth-grade classes, with student and teacher materials on basic plant science, starter peat blocks and seeds of the Black Locust. A video on beginning gardening is also available for use with the program. Students who complete the seed-to-tree basic forestry project will be enrolled as 4-H'ers and given the opportunity to participate in other 4-H activities.

Such a program offers several benefits, Becker believes. Young people are exposed to the joys of starting seeds and to the 4-H program as well. As farm population, traditionally the backbone of the 4-H program, declines, the horticulture agent foresees schools playing a larger role in such activities to introduce youth to 4-H. Master Gardeners, and the role they play as volunteers, are natural leaders to further this facet of Extension youth work.

With his second class nearly ready for "graduation" into community horticulture leadership, Becker has only praise for both the Master Gardening program and the individuals who have committed their talents toward this promising part of Cooperative Extension work.

"It's really turning out to be a nice program for York County."

Summer Courses Slated At PSU Circleville Farm

UNIVERSITY PARK—Summer is the ideal time for classes in small-scale agricultural practices and the college of agriculture at Penn State is offering three courses for credit during the Summer Session, June 10 to Aug. 8. Classes will be held at the Circleville Farm, 1 176-acre agricultural laboratory next to the Penn State golf course at University Park, as well as in greenhouses, classrooms and livestock facilities on campus.

Roland Daniels, associate professor of horticulture, will teach Small Scale Horticultural Crop Production (HORT 297A, 3 credits) from 8 a.m. to 12:25 p.m. during the eight-week session on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The course will concentrate on the basics of producing small fruits and vegetables for market and would be appropriate for novice gardeners, backyard gardeners and anyone interested in growing produce to sell.

Clair Engle, associated professor of animal science, Forest Muir, associated professor of poultry science, and Lowell Wilson, professor of animal science, will teach Basic Livestock and Poultry Management (AN SC/PTYSC 198, 3 credits) from 9:30 to 12:30 Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, for six weeks from June 25 to Aug. 6. Classes will be held at the poultry farm, the beef and sheep center and at the Circleville Farm. They will be divided into three two-week sessions on poultry, beef and sheep, covering feeds, pastures and grazing management.

Students may also sign up for a Practicum in Sustainable Agriculture (AG SC 296, AG SC 496, 1-8 credits), during the eight-week session, by appointment. The practicum allows students to participate in ongoing farm projects or to design their own program with the guidance of faculty.

Courses are open to advanced standing high school students (with permission from their counselors), undergraduate students, graduate students and area residents.

Programs at the farm stress integrated agricultural practices in animal production, fruits, vegetables and field crops using ecologically sound and sustainable farming methods.

The farm, which is managed by students and faculty, is part of the college of agriculture. Summer programs are supported in part by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation in cooperation with the colleges of agriculture and liberal arts. For more information, contact the Farm Office at (814)863-2745. For a Summer Session catalog of courses, write or call: Office of Summer Session, Birch Cottage, University Park, PA 16802; (814)863-4174.

NUTHIN' HERE TO EAT

From school, from barn, from field they come
All frazzled, tired and beat.
Burst through the door and holler out
"Hey Mom, what's here to eat?"

There's bread and butter. Celery stalks.
Peanut butter. Jelly.
Cereal. Crackers. Carrot sticks.
They'll help to fill your belly.

Or how 'bout apples, oranges, too?
A glass of milk is neat.
With wrinkled nose and grumbling voice:
"Gee. Nuthing' here to eat."

My frozen waffles are wiped out,
The raisin box is bare,
So, let's send out for pizza, Mom!"
Forget it. Don't you dare.

Bananas have been peeled away,
The ice cream's all gone, too.
I've not been to the grocery store
At least a day or two.

Our cupboards scanned, the drawers checked out
In search of something sweet.
No cookies, brownies, cakes or pies.
"Rats! Nuthin' here to eat."

So to the gumblers I suggest
A treat that makes 'em shiver.
"Why don't you let me fix for you
A nice, big dish of liver?"

With that in mind, they turn on heel
Determined to "think thinner."
Gosh. After all, in half an hour
We'll all sit down for dinner.

Three Generations Of Caulk Family Win FFA Award

DOVER, Del. — For the first time in Delaware history, three generations of one family have won the Future Farmers of America's Star Farmer of the Year award.

Terry M. Caulk, 20, of Frederica, picked up the award this year as FFA Future Farmer of Delaware, keeping in tradition of his father, Rep. G. Wallace Caulk, Jr. (R-Frederica), who won the same award in 1958, and his grandfather, G. Wallace (Pat) Caulk, who won the award in 1937.

Terry Caulk has been a member of the FFA since 1982. He has managed the 120-acre family farm since 1983 and raises buffalo, beef, cattle and hay. Caulk will go on to the FFA regional convention in Springfield, Mass. in September, where he will compete for regional honors and then on to Kansas City in November to receive the American Farming Degree, the highest honor in FFA.

Muenster Cheese

2½ gallons sour milk. Let set until thick like junket.

Scald until it is too hot to hold your hand in, then pour into cheesecloth. Let hang until curds are dry — overnight or 12 hours.

Crumble curds and mix 2 heaping teaspoons soda and ½ cup butter into them Let set for 2 hours, then put in the double boiler.

Add 1 cup sour cream and melt. When melted, add another cup sour cream and 1 tablespoon salt. Mix well. Pour into a buttered mold. Let set until completely cold and slice.

Ricotta Cheese

Ricotta is a type of soft cheese made from whey of cheese made with rennet. Heat the whey until a coat of cream rises to the top. Add one quart of whole milk for whey from 12 quarts of milk Stir and heat until nearly boiling, but do not let boil. When curd rises to the top and tends to draw away from sides of pan, add a little less than ½ cup of strong vinegar and stir well. Before long, the curd will rise to the top. Skim curd from top, salt and put in hoop or cheesecloth to drain for about 8 hours Then cheese is ready to eat.

Egg Cheese

2 quarts sweet milk
1 pint buttermilk or sour milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
4 eggs

Bring sweet milk to boiling point Beat eggs lightly and add sour milk, salt and sugar. Beat slightly again Pour slowly into hot sweet milk.

Cover with lid and let stand several minutes Stir slowly until it separates Remove cheese from whey by using a blade with holes or a colander When set, serve with syrup

Crock Cheese

1 gallon thick sour milk
1½ teaspoons butter
1½ teaspoons salt
⅔ cup cream
½ teaspoon soda

Scald milk to 120°F. or until too hot to hold finger in Drain through a fine colander or cloth sack Place in crock and crumb until fine Add the salt and mix well

Cover with a cloth and set to ripen at room temperature for 3 days. Mix soda in the cheese, let stand 3 hours. Melt butter in an aluminum pan or skillet and add the cheese Stir until dissolved and then add the cream Continue stirring until mixture comes to a boil Pour into flat dish or bowl.

Cottage Cheese

1½ gallons sour milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup cream

Heat milk slowly until it is too hot to hold your finger in (approximately 115°F.) Drain through a cloth bag or strainer. Let stand in bag overnight to drain. When dry, crumb cheese curds. Add salt. When serving, add sweet cream and mix. Makes 3½ cups.

ANSWER - M V Runkles, III of Parkton, Md , has words of advice for several Cook's Question Corner readers with questions First, for Mrs Belinda Myers of Dallastown, who wanted a soft doughnut recipe, he writes "If she is using a yeast risen dough, try a dough that uses baking powder. Most store bought doughnuts are now made this way. If yeast is used at all, it is only for flavor The second thing she might try is to use a spring wheat flour Spring wheat is grown in the midwest and is lower in gluten than our wonderful Pennsylvania winter wheat flour. Gluten is the sticky part of the flour that easily forms crusts and can have a very chewey texture "

Next is a quick comment for Mrs Clara Scarff of Whitehall, Md , who would like a recipe for coconut cake that uses coconut milk He writes that most coconut cake recipes are standard white cake recipes that substitute the coconut milk for cows milk If there isn't enough coconut milk, you can use cow's milk to make up the difference Almond extract is often added as well

For Mrs Ronald Kannoda of Monongahela, Mr Runkles suggests adding water to the Dutch oven so the chicken can steam for the last half hour or so to keep the chicken soft

Susan Slater Crowned Montgomery County Dairy Princess

Susan Slater (seated) will reign as the 1987-88 Montgomery County dairy princess. Pamela Longacre was selected as alternated dairy princess for the county at ceremonies held last Saturday.

KULPSVILLE — Susan Slater, 16, became the latest crowned promoter of the dairy industry in Montgomery County when she won the county's dairy princess title last Saturday evening.

In the contest, held here at the Towamencin Firehall, she edged three other contestants for the honor. Pamela Longacre, 16, will wear the alternate dairy princess banner.

Susan is the daughter of Mark and Carol Slater, Perkiomenville. Presently a junior at Boyertown Senior High School, she plans to enter the work force as a secretary and move into a management-type position. In her spare time after high school she hopes to teach music.

In high school she participates in the bell choir, band and orchestra. Susan belongs to the local 4-H dairy club, enjoys playing various musical instruments, and working on the family farm.

For her promotional presentation at the pageant, Susan depicted the various components of milk as the musical notes in a song. She played the song on her flute. However, when she came to notes, items not found in milk, the song lost its continuity. With the removal of these erroneous notes, Susan presented the audience with a smooth tune and clear picture of milk which she called her "milk melody."

Susan will begin her reign in June. She will replace the 1986-87 princess, Lisa Ruth of Telford.

Pamela is the daughter of David and Virginia Longacre, Hereford. She is a junior at Upper Perkiomen High School and plans to attend a community college after graduation.

She is a member of the high school band, grange and local 4-H dairy club. Pamela enjoys fishing, volleyball and caring for the farm animals.

For her skit, Pamela performed a puppet show with Ernie, of Sesame Street fame, learning about the benefits of milk from a cow.

The other contestants were Cynthia Moser, 16, the daughter of Harold and Dorothy Moser, Barto, and Amy Wolfgang, 16, the daughter of Robert and Gail Wolfgang, Gilbertsville.

Judges for the evenings event were: Dick Bailey, Doylestown, Bucks County Extension agent; Robin Phillips, Mohrsville, Jersey breeder; and Lou Stephens, Barto beautician and former dairy princess.

From Athletes To Accountants To Surgeons, There Is A Hall Of Fame For Everyone

CHICAGO — Most Americans are familiar with the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., or the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, or the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

But did you know there is a Candy Makers Hall of Fame in Hershey, Pa.; an Alabama Turkey Hunters Hall of Fame in Linden, Ala.; the National Humor Hall of Fame, address Box HoHo, in Le Claire, Iowa; a Christian Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio; a Big Band Hall of Fame in Wilmington, Del.; or a Dog Mushers Hall of Fame in Kuik, Ak.?

Did They Say 'Drainage'?

There are Accountants, Insurance, and Drainage halls of fame in Columbus, Ohio. There is an Aviation Hall of Fame in Dayton, Ohio, but also a National Aviation Hall of Fame in Hammondsport, N.Y. The National Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame near Hayward, Wis., is distinguished by a 140-foot sculpture of a muskellunge, something that is absent from the Texas Salt Water Fishing Hall of Fame on Galveston Island.

The Racing Hall of Fame in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., has no connection with the Hall of Fame of the Trotter in Goshen, N.Y.

Here in Chicago, the new Junior Achievement National Business Hall of Fame of going great guns at the Museum of Science and Industry, just a floor away from the Nobel Hall of Immortels. The National Italian-American Sports Hall of Fame has been so successful that it is moving to a larger building in the suburbs. But the Chicago Sports Hall of Fame consists only of photographs hanging in a Soldier Field concourse.

The 13 members of the Hall of Fame of the International College of Surgeons, from Im-hotep to Mme. Curie, are immortalized in larger-than-life statues.

But the Pickle Packers Hall of Fame exists only in a series of photographs and citations in the Pickle Makers Guild's annual directory, and the Chicago Black Athletes Hall of Fame has not yet chosen any inductees, though it hopes to do so by next fall.

If, as Emily Dickinson wrote, "fame is a fickle food, upon a shifting plate," Americans seem intent upon freeze-drying it in a bewildering array of halls of fame. Name a sport, an activity, a location, an ethnic group, and chances are there is a hall of fame somewhere attempting to convey immortality.

Reflection of Hero Worship

Victor Danilov, who recently retired as director of the Museum of Science and Industry and was instrumental in bringing the Nobel and Business halls of fame to the museum, has concluded that halls of fame are "an American phenomenon that apparently reflects the national desire for hero worship."

There are an estimated 600 or so of them in this country, as opposed to only a handful in other countries.

"In many cases, it's not just an honor, but a cause that's being promoted," says Danilov. "For example, ethnic halls of fame honor someone from that heritage, but they also cause people to pay attention to Italians, or blacks, or whatever."

The pioneer was the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, begun in 1900 on what was then the Bronx campus of New York University. The Baseball Hall of Fame came next, in 1939. But the big boom began in the 1950s, as Americans began to lavish attention, zeal, and money on things that were important to them. By the late 1970s, a new hall of fame was being created every month.

A lot of attention in the last few years has gone to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, which will be built in Cleveland. The group behind it has been negotiating with architect I.M. Pei to design the $25 million building.

But the less-expensive halls of fame in the Chicago area are, as a group, more typical of halls throughout the country.

The Nobel Hall of Immortals honors American winners of Nobel Prizes in physics, chemistry, and physiology or medicine. A slide show tells the history of the prizes; a film includes such exotica as George Bernard Shaw's speech at the 1921 Nobel Prize dinner for Albert Einstein. Artifacts include a doodle pad used by physicist Tsung-dao Lee, who won the 1957 award.

The Chicago Sports Hall of Fame was created in 1979 as a promotional enterprise by a brewery, and turned over to the Chicago Park District in 1982. The inductees range from well-known figures to some virtually unknown even in Chicago.

Hardly shy about his new bronze star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame, comedian Dom DeLuise leads friends in cheering and applause. The walk exemplifies the spirit that has led Americans to establish about 600 halls of fame honoring dog mushers, pickle packers and others who excel in their craft.

Fame Italian Style

George Randazzo founded the National Italian-American Sports Hall of Fame in 1978 to support youth programs. Joe DiMaggio and Eddie Arcaro attended their induction dinner. "That gave the organization credibility," says Randazzo. Soon he was collecting memorabilia for display: Rocky Marciano's championship belt, Mario Andretti's racing car, Primo Carnera's size-18 boxing shoes. Randazzo stresses that the hall aims "to promote Italian-Americans in a positive way."

A similar notion guides Carol Thomas and her associates as they plan the Chicago Black Athletes Hall of Fame, to be housed in the DeSable Museum of African-American History. "We want to honor those athletes who have given something back to the community, people who were role models," she says. Five will be chosen each year.

And then there are those halls of fame of which Danilov comments, "They sound better than they are. A lot of them are collections of clothing, photos, diaries, and letters just stacked in the corner."

Lisa Johnson Earns Franklin County Apple Queen Title

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

EDENVILLE — In the presentation portion of the Franklin County Apple Queen contest, Lisa Johnson told the audience the best title she could have would be "Franklin County Apple Queen." Barely 20 minutes later, she received the title and the accompanying crown from Dwight Mickey, master of ceremonies and president of the Franklin County Horticultural Society.

Three contestants competed for the crown March 18 at Edensville Community Center. Lisa, a junior at James Buchanan High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Johnson, St. Thomas, owners and operators of Johnson's Orchard. Lisa is a member of her school's varsity softball and field hockey teams, and is a swimming instructor for elementary grades. Her future plans include attending college with a major in criminology. She is active in her church's youth group.

Lisa selected the Golden Delicious as her favorite apple, citing its uses for snacks and in salads. The apple, she said in her presentation, was one of man's first foods, and is now the world's most famous and versatile fruit. It is also the most widely grown and readily available. She encouraged the use of the apple for its iron, calcium, phosphorus and Vitamins A, B, and B_2, and for it spectin, which cleanses the mouth and teeth.

One of her goals as Apple Queen is to care for the well-being of those around her.

When Lisa's father returned to work at Letterkenny Army Depot last summer, Lisa took over much of the management of the family's 25-acre orchard. She supervised a crew of high school students in thinning peaches, picking apples, pruning, and planting trees.

Apple Princess Jill Lynch also chose the Golden Delicious as her favorite apple because of its versatility. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lynch of Mercersburg, she worked at the Ralph Tracey orchards near Greencastle. She is a junior at James Buchanan High School and a cosmetology student at Franklin County Vo-Tech School. She plans to become a cosmetology teacher.

Jill will promote the Franklin County apple industry when the Queen has other obligations. In her presentation, she discussed ways she would promote the apple to three different sectors of the public — the elementary school age group, high schoolers, and adults. She also proposed two slogans for bumper stickers — "Make a friend — share an apple" and "One good apple leads to another."

Dwight Mickey crowns Lisa Johnson, Franklin County Apple Queen. Apple Princess Jill Lynch stands at right.

Runner-up was Donna Stuff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stuff of Mercersburg. A senior at James Buchanan High School, she has been accepted by the Antonelli Art Institute in York to study commercial art this fall. She is a member of the Student Council, Varsity Club, Chorus, and Girl's Tennis Team.

The Franklin County Horticultural Society sponsors the Apple Queen program to promote the apple industry. During her one-year reign, the queen will promote apples and apple products at county agricultural events.

Contestants were judged on poise, personality, and ability to speak in front of the public.

Judges were Judith Pheil, Kim Grove, and Dalton Paul. Mrs. Douglas Kriner provided piano accompaniment.

Bedford Sheep and Wool Producers Select Officers, Queen

BY BETH GRAY
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD — Women figured prominently in the annual meeting March 14 of the Bedford County Sheep and Wool Producers' Association.

Elissa Henderson of Schellsburg was elected president and Peggy McCammon of Bedford, secretary-treasurer. Henderson succeeds John E. Holbert of Bedford. Named as vice president was Richard Barkley of Manns Choice. Elected to the board of directors were Kathy Weaver of Everett, Kevin Koontz of Bedford and Galen Carson of Imler.

Sonia Sue Lawson, 17, of Woodbury was selected 1987 County Lamb and Wool Queen, suceeding Gwendolyn Gray of Schellsburg who continues as Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen. Lawson is the foster daughter of Dorothy Stauffer. A senior at Northern Bedford County High School, she is a vocational agriculture major and a member of the Future Farmers of America. Her family keeps a select flock of Columbias, with which Lawson has helped for two years. Lawson became interested in sheepherding through Stauffer's daughter, Heidi, who was Bedford County's 1985 Lamb and Wool Queen.

Tammy McCloskey of Everett was named 1987 alternate queen. Judges for the event were Barbara Shaffer and Mary Ann Sorber of the Somerset County Lady Shepherds.

The Bedford association announced plans for its first feeder lamb and feeder pig to be held at the Bedford Fairgrounds April 11 at 2 p.m. A committee will screen consignments to select an offering aimed at providing competitive 4-HClub and FFA projects. Approximately 25 lambs and 25 pigs will be sold at auction. Fred Koontz of Bedford is sale chairman. David Harpster of Boalsburg, Centre County, will serve as auctioneer and chairman of the selection committee.

As the new president, Henderson is seeking suggestions for meeting topics and activities. A new county directory is being planned.

How To Shop For Frozen Foods

One of the conveniences that most of us enjoy as homemakers is the home freezer and its accompanying companion, frozen foods. Here are a few simple rules to follow when buying frozen foods to get the greatest value for your food dollar.

• Check your freezer space before going shopping. Don't purchase more frozen food than your freezer can handle.

• Shop the freezer section last. Do not have the frozen food lying in your shopping cart while you mull over the remainder of your food needs.

• Study the freezer case for new products and ideas. You will find many time-saving products for those times when you are too busy to cook.

• Select food packages which are in perfect condition. Torn or crushed packages will allow the food to dry out and lose taste and quality.

• Make grocery shopping your last stop. Don't allow your frozen food to thaw in the car while you make further stops.

• Place your frozen food in your freezer immediately when you arrive home.

• Remember to label and date packages so that you will be sure to use first the foods which have been in your freezer the longest.

• If you do not have a refrigerator/freezer thermometer, purchase one and place it in your freezer. Keep the temperature of your freezer at Zero degrees Fahrenheit. Food retains its quality much longer when stored at this temperature.

Shopping For A Refrigerator Freezer

Modern refrigerator/freezer are designed to use energy more efficiently. Improvements and energy saving features do cost more to buy, but the extra dollars are soon recovered in energy savings.

Keep in mind that the amount of energy consumed by a refrigerator/freezer depends on size, temperature to be maintained, insulation, and defrost system. Factors to consider and evaluate:

• Size or capacity for present and future family needs.

• Options such as ice maker; cost, convenience, satisfaction.

• Estimated energy consumption and operation cost.

• Insulation: type and amount.

• Energy saving features: "power saver" switch, or by-pass condenser loops to prevent condensation.

• Freezer compartment: size, location, and temperature range.

• Type of defrost: manual, cycle (partial), or no-frost (automatic).

For example, a frost-free refrigerator/freezer costs more to operate than manual or partially automatic models. The frost-free feature is only one reason for the higher operating cost. Chances are it is larger than the old manual defrost it replaced. The cost-free model probably has more freezer space and maintains 0°F compared to about 15°F for a manual defrost unit. Keeping lower temperatures takes more energy but maintains food quality longer.

Brothers Open Can Of Worms, Find Success

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

CLARKSTOWN – Opening a can of worms isn't usually considered a desirable exercise, but about a year ago two Lycoming County youths did just that and haven't regretted it yet. Michael and Matt Lowe, 15 and 13 respectively, drained their savings accounts and with a little financial aid from their parents mustered $4,000 to establish the M&M Worm Farm, Clarkstown. Their present inventory of earthworms numbers 100,000.

It all began, according to the boys' mother, Gail, when Michael saw a magazine advertisement and sent to Wisconsin for information about starting a worm farm. Since the age of 13, she says, he had talked of opening a sporting goods store and has now become involved with the worm farm.

Michael's business inclinations at such an early age come as no surprise to those acquainted with the family. Harold and Gail Lowe have owned and operated Lowe's Super Duper Market in Clarkstown for a number of years and it was Harold's father who started the forerunner of the present operation.

A short time after Michael spotted the ad his father contacted the worm grower and soon the Lowes were spending their Easter vacation in Wisconsin learning how to manage a worm farm.

It is evident Michael was always in favor of starting the worm farm, but how did he interest Matt in the matter?

"Matt wasn't interested, wasn't giving up his money until he saw the operation to see if it was workable," commented Mrs. Lowe.

Soon after their return from Wisconsin Matt gave the enterprise his stamp of approval and the brothers received 3,000 hybrid breeder earthworms. Along with the worms came 1,000 pounds of feed, which is approximately one year's supply, booster vitamin supplement, 50 plastic buckets and a worm harvester. Peat moss, an additional ingredient, the Lowe's purchased locally.

For those farmers who occasionally wish to "pack it all in and start over," worm farming presents distinct possibilities. With 400 buckets of 250 worms each stacked in the family's garage, the boys are dealing in effect with 400 little farms. Every two weeks each bucket or small farm must be "changed." Of course, Mrs. Lowe points out, the buckets are staggered so they all aren't due to be changed at the same time. Nevertheless, the buckets are dumped one by one on a machine called a harvester which separates the worms, eggs, potting soil, and manure by a shaking process.

The Lowe family poses in front of the 400 buckets that are the worm farm. In front is Matt with mother, Gail, and cousin Eric Anstadt. Harold Lowe and Michael stand in back.

After sorting, the worms are returned to a bucket of newly mixed pulverized peat moss to which has been added feed and a vitamin supplement. The worms are kept at a temperature of 75°F to produce optimum growth. Mr. Lowe says it takes from 24 to 26 weeks to raise a worm to maturity.

The eggs collected are put into "hatch" pails and kept at a slightly warmer temperature of 80 degrees until they hatch in approximately two weeks.

The spent peat moss mixture makes excellent potting soil and the earthworm manure, which is high in nitrogen, is a superb fertilizer. Both by-products are a source of additional income for the boys. According to Mr. Lowe, a local nursery recently contacted them to purchase manure and earthworms for use in the nursery. Presently, the earthworms are wholesaled to bait shops and also sold retail.

The boys have discovered, as with any business venture, there is a certain amount of time to be devoted to the operation. The brothers say they work a couple hours each night after school with their worm farm and on Saturdays and Sundays as needed. Mr. and Mrs. Lowe pitch in as required and regard it as family time spent together.

Mrs. Lowe notes that since a recent newspaper article about their worm enterprise, they've received compliments from people who feel allowing the boys to start their own business at such an early age was an excellent idea and a very constructive use of their time.

Both boys operate the harvester to separate the worms from the soil. Michael, though, mixes the feed and grinds the peat moss, while Matt, Mrs. Lowe says, tinkers with the machinery and keeps it greased.

Although Matt reports they didn't know a "real lot about them" in the beginning, the boys have learned some interesting facts about the earthworms. Concerning their reproduction, Mrs. Lowe observes that their hybrid earthworms lay two or three eggs every two weeks and out of each egg anywhere from one to six worms hatch. By com-

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This year I actually got my sweet peas planted on St. Patrick's Day and now I'm looking forward to their brilliant color range. Usually it is a week or more later before I get them planted. And, by the time that you read this, I expect to have half of my garden planted with sugar peas and hull peas. All of the seed is saved from year to year as my particular kinds can't be bought in a store.

When I prepared the garden for the rototiller, I found several vegetables waiting to be harvested. Rather than turn under the parsnips and salsify, I dug them up and made a meal of them. There were several small cabbage heads to be cut that had sprouted out after the main one was cut off last year. I also cut off several Chinese cabbage plants that were too small last fall and cooked them.

There is a small patch of evergreen onions that stay out all winter and give me green scallions early in the spring. They have been fighting for existence in a grassy plot for several years but seem to be holding their own. All of this makes me feel as though I'm harvesting before I even plant anything.

Our 15 noisy geese think it is spring too as they have started to lay eggs. However, I'm not anxious for them to hatch very many and so we gather and eat them. Day and night these large, white feathered creatures quarrel and fuss.

A few months ago, something or someone scared them away and they swam a mile downstream and joined two other geese on another farm. Those two had often visited our gaggle of geese but our had never left our meadow before.

Then one day they swam home through swift and muddy water and we spent weeks feeding them corn in the meadow and gradually coaxing them up to the buildings again. Now they make several trips a day to our corn crib behind the barn.

Baby Beef Club

The members of the New Holland 4-H Baby Beef Club met recently at the home of club member Heather Yoder. The president called the meeting to order and reports on the members' steers were given.

The program of the meeting was a videotape on how dogs are trained for security at the jail in Lancaster. The meeting was adjourned and refreshments served.

The next meeting will be held at the home of club member Krista Martin.

Worm Farm

parison, Mr. Lowe, adds, local nightcrawlers only produce two or three eggs per season.

Regarding the reactions of friends to their wriggly endeavor, Michael recalls that at first many of his friends "thought I was nuts." But when they saw the article in the local paper, he says, his prestige factor went up.

"Most everybody couldn't believe how much we spent to get into it," Matt exclaims.

The best part of the operation, Michael thinks, is, "Using the worms." Since he is an avid hunting and fishing enthusiast, Mrs. Lowe says, Michael could literally be his own best customer.

According to Mr. Lowe, the M&M Worm Farm, with one exception near Pittsburgh, is the only one of its kind in Pennsylvania. He says most worms in the area are imported from Canada. At any rate, many area fishermen will be reaping a harvest because two young boys weren't afraid to open a can of worms.

TO FULLY APPRECIATE A BCS TILLER, YOU HAVE TO CONSIDER THE ALTERNATIVE

Compared to our leading competitor, the BCS 725 tiller is lighter weight, more powerful and has a five speed, all precision gear transmission with two speed reverse. There are no V-belts, pulleys or friction discs to stretch, break or wear. And, with it's full line of attachments, the BCS 725 is far more versatile.

What's more, BCS offers you seven different tiller systems to choose from. With the proper attachments, you can convert any BCS tiller to a sickle bar, rotary mower, or snow thrower in just three minutes.

There are lots of other outstanding features about the BCS tiller that you'll appreciate including 100% ball bearing construction. And, if you'll send us the coupon, we'll tell you all about them, as well as the name of your nearest BCS dealer. But there's one thing we can tell you right now: All things considered, BCS is the toughest tiller on earth.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

One Dish Suppers

Need dinner in a hurry? Or a casserole for a pot luck dinner? If so, check out the two recipes below for one dish meals. These quick casseroles are great for pot luck suppers, since they contain both meat and vegetables.

Keep the ingredients for these on hand, so you have a quick emergency meal if you forget to defrost a roast. Served with a salad, fruit and rolls or biscuits you've got a hearty meal in a hurry!

If you have your own favorite casserole you'd like to try in the microwave, here are a few hints for adapting it to microwave cooking:

— Saute onions, celery, peppers, etc. before mixing in with other ingredients, or they will stay too crunchy. Microwave on high for 2 to 4 minutes, or until tender, stirring once.

— Reduce liquids by about half, since there is less evaporation in microwave cooking than in the range oven.

— Choose ingredients that need about the same amount of cooking time. For instance, with cooked meat use quick cooking rice. With raw meats, regular rice could be used. Or, precook the longer cooking food before adding to the casserole. For instance, precook cubed raw potatoes when combining them with cooked meat

— If casserole has a topping, do not put it on until after you stir, halfway through. Then add topping and finish cooking. This way, you can use high power.

— Use high power, stir halfway through, and microwave for about 1/4 of the range cooking time. If casserole is layered and can't be stirred or if it has a lot of cream, eggs or cheese, you should use medium power. On medium (50,5), microwave for about 1/2 of range time.

— If casserole is cooked covered in the range, cover it in your microwave. If baked uncovered, leave it uncovered or cover with waxed paper.

— Let stand for 5 to 10 minutes after microwaving for temperature to even out and for flavors to blend.

— Top won't be brown and crispy; brown under broiler if desired.

The barbecue flavor makes this Sausage and Bean Casserole a favorite with both old and young. Substitute other vegetables, use hamburger instead of sausage, or use leftover rice or cubed leftover potatoes if desired instead of the quick cooking rice.

Sausage and Beans

1 10-ounce package frozen fordhook lima beans
1 pound bulk pork sausage
1 small onion, chopped (1/2 cup)
1 12-ounce can cut corn, drained
1 cup uncooked quick cooking rice
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
1/4 cup water
2 tablespoons brown sugar or molasses
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt, optional
1/8 teaspoon pepper

1. Place box of frozen limas on a plate and microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes, turning the box over halfway through. Set aside.

2. In a 1 1/2-to-2-quart casserole, combine loose sausage and onion. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes, until the meat is no longer pink. Stir in limas, corn and rice.

3. In a small bowl combine the remaining ingredients and pour over the casserole. Stir to mix, then cover tightly. Microwave on high for 10 to 15 minutes, stirring every 5 minutes, until beans and rice are tender. Let stand 5 minutes. Serves 4.

Tips: If using leftover rice or potatoes, omit 1/4 cup water.

— Any frozen vegetables used should be thawed and partially cooked before adding to casserole. If using canned vegetables, drain and add without precooking.

Here's a quick version of an old favorite. Add sliced carrots to the vegetables and you've got a New England Boiled Dinner!

Quick Corned Beef and Cabbage

1 chopped onion
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pound cabbage shredded (4 cups)
1 pound potatoes (4 medium), peeled and cubed
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
3/4 cup apple juice
1 12-ounce can corned beef or 1/2 pound cooked, corned beef from deli, cubed

1. Put butter and onion in a 2 1/2-to-3-quart casserole. Microwave on high for 3 minutes, stirring halfway through, until onion is tender. Add cabbage, potato, salt, pepper and apple juice and stir to mix.

2. Cover tightly and microwave on high for 12 to 15 minutes, stirring every 5 minutes, until the cabbage and potatoes are tender.

3. Stir in cubed meat and microwave on high for 5 minutes, until heated through. Serves 4 to 6.

Tips: 1/2 pound cubed ham or 1 pound sliced hot dogs may be substituted for corned beef.

— For New England Boiled Dinner, add 4 carrots sliced diagonally in 1" thick slices. Add to cabbage in step 1, and increase cooking time to 20 minutes in step 2.

— Omit meat and serve vegetables as a side dish.

Lycoming Co. Farmers Host Ag Day Promotion At Lycoming Mall

MUNCY — How much money does the farmer actually receive from a market basket of groceries worth $46.99? As part of the second annual Pennsylvania Agriculture Commodities Promotion, visitors to the Lycoming Mall March 21 were asked to put their estimates into a box.

The winner of the contest guessing closest to $10.34 took home the groceries. The contest was sponsored by the Lycoming County Farmer's Association Women's Committee.

According to committee member Helen Barto, this year's promotion included 19 agricultural exhibits, a gain of seven exhibitors from last year.

"Today's a wonderful day. There's been a wonderful turnout," Marge Stamen noted of the crowd.

Passersby stopped to view lambs and a weaving exhibit at the wool growers booth, study a live hive of bees demonstrated by a beekeeper, or to taste milk and cheese distributed by a dairy princess. In addition, representatives from the livestock, pork, maple, poultry, and strawberry industries were on hand to inform the public about agriculture.

Commodity queens and dairy princesses distributed recipes, free samples of milk, and cheese, and offered information about products they represented.

Several farm organizations including the Grange, PFA, and Farmers Union presented exhibits.

Manheim Young Farmers Honor Members

HEMPFIELD — The Manheim Young Farmers, the second largest chapter in state, honored their members for outstanding production at their recent annual banquet.

Stedale Farms, owned by Steve and Dale Hershey, received the awards for highest rolling herd average in milk and fat at the banquet held at the Hempfield Church of the Brethren. Their herd averaged 22,413 pounds of milk and 750 pounds of fat.

Delmar Wenger received the awards for the high 2-year-old cow milk record and the greatest herd improvement for milk production. His 2 year old produced a record of 23,260 pounds of milk to qualify for the award. Wenger improved his herd average by 1,783 pounds of milk to garner the second award.

Dennis Weaver edged the competition and took home the poultry award by averaging 3.37 pounds of feed per dozen eggs.

Crop production awards were distributed to four producers.

Lamar Miller reaped the awards for corn silage and shelled corn production. He averaged 38.9 tons of corn silage per acre and 202.6 bushels of shelled corn per acre to capture the two awards.

The award for ear corn production went to Wayne Erb who averaged 203 bushels per acre.

Larry Hershey captured the award for double soybeans with a yield of 54 bushels per acre. Barry Geib netted the early soybean award by harvesting 59.3 bushels per acre.

Larry Hershey was named the outstanding young farmer under 30. David Landis was the recipient of the award in the over 30 division.

Robert and Marti Harnish received the award for outstanding community service.

New chapter officers for 1987 were announced. They are: Donald Wenger, president; Larry Hershey, vice president; Earl Geib, treasurer; Jere Swarr, secretary; Larry Ginder, assistant secretary; and Dennis Kulp, public relations.

Phoebe Bitler, one of the three spokespersons for the National Young Farmers Association, presented the speech she used when she won the state and national contests.

The award for outstanding young farmer under 30 went to Bonnie (left) and Larry Hershey. Lois and Dave Landis garnered the award in the over 30 division.

Lamar Miller (left), Barry Geib, Larry Hershey and Dennis Weaver were honored for outstanding production in crops and poultry.

The Berks County dairy wife offered "supermarket survival strategies" and suggestions to cut food costs.

She noted the importance of planning weekly menus and reviewing food ads for the best buys that week.

"Cut empty calories," Bitler urged, "not nutrition." Consumers can do this by selecting a variety of foods.

When shopping, the YFA spokesman stressed the need to make and stick to a grocery list to avoid unnecessary and sometimes expensive impluse items.

Clipping coupons and then using them with common sense can net the shopper valuable savings, she said. Avoid coupons for items which are overpriced, she said.

Bitler suggested shopping in the evening, after eating. Grocery bills can increase up to 15 percent if the buyer is hungry when they shop. Shop later in the week, she advised, when food specials are in effect.

Select the size to fit the needs of the buyer. Bitler noted that in some cases a large size may be cheaper buy. But when half of the quantity is wasted the savings are minimial or non-existent. Also the best buy is not necessarily the biggest package.

Buying cuts of meat with the most lean meat per serving is one method a consumer can use to get more for their food dollar as well as avoiding convenience foods, Bitler said.

"Grocery shopping may never be recreational, but it can be more pleasurable if you get the most for your money," she concluded.

She encouraged the group to promote agriculture where ever they are. "No matter where you are, you are the spokeman for agriculture."

The world is constantly looking in on the farmers and forming opinions of farmers. "We need to project a strong positive image," she said.

In her travels she enters grocery stores to promote agriculture and noted it is refreshing to hear consumers' concern for farmers, Bitler said. She credits the increased concern to the movies which have focused on the farmer's plight.

The slogan for this year's national ag day was: Ag — America's Heartbeat, Bitler noted. Farmers need to keep the heartbeat strong and be a positive spokeman for agriculture everyday.

Agriculture creates 25 million jobs, she said. Producers need to show that agriculture is "more than cows and plows. It's an affair of the heart."

Marti and Robert Harnish received the community service award from the Manheim Young Farmers.

Thurmont, Emmitsburg Community Show Slated

THURMONT — The Thurmont and Emmitsburg Community Show Committee met recently to plan for the 31st annual show at Catoctin High School; the event is scheduled for Sept. 11 through 13.

Officers are: president, C. Rodman Myers; vice president, Robert Beaven; and secretary, Tonjia Wilson.

The committee voted to honor the Guardian Hose Company of Thurmont, celebrating its 100th anniversary. They also decided to cancel the steam festival and pie eating contest.

The group gave a $100 donation to the Catoctin High School Band Boosters. The Community Show committee will work with Catoctin High School principal Earl Miller to construct a coming events sign near the front entrance of the school.

Plant Science Student Wins Fellowship To Study In England

NEWARK, Del. — Going to England has been a lifelong dream of plant science student Mark C. Starrett. Now that dream can be realized.

Starrett, a second semester senior majoring in plant pathology and entomology at the University of Delaware, has won an Interchange Fellowship in Horticulture and Landscape Architecture to spend a year studying horticulture in England and Scotland. The fellowship, which is sponsored by the Garden Club of America and the Martin McLaren Fund of the English-Speaking Union, combines courses at the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew, the Royal Horticultural Society Gardens at Wisley, and Edinburgh's Royal Botanic Garden, with the opportunity to study at Reading University during the winter months.

Starrett says he is particularly looking forward to working with tropical plant material—especially orchids—in the plant collections he will study. "I also hope to visit the Eric Young orchid collection on the Isle of Jersey while I'm over there," he says. "The fellowship is sort of like doing a year long independent study on special horticultural problems.

"I've always wanted to go to England," says the young plant scientist. "As far as this fellowship is concerned, I was lucky enough to be in the right place at the right time. It's available to one student each year in this country on a rotating basis in one of 10 geographic zones. The last winner from my zone, 10 years ago, was another University of Delaware student, Judith Zuk. She's now director of the Arthur Hoyt Scott Foundation Arboretum in Swarthmore, Pa."

Despite what Starrett says, winning the interchange fellowship is more than a matter of being at the right place at the right time. His track record as a student and plant enthusiast is well-established. A member of the University of Delaware's Honors Program since his freshman year, Starrett has been a Dean's Scholar in the College of Agricultural Sciences since 1985 and has received numerous undergraduate fellowships and scholarships.

Open, friendly and well-liked as well as extremely well-organized, Starrett is currently president of the Ag College student council and the college's Horticulture Club. He has also been an officer in Alpha Zeta, the national agricultural honor/service fraternity.

At the end of his sophomore year Starrett received a university undergraduate research grant which allowed him to spend the summer and part of his junior year using tissue culture techniques to study a fungus disease that attacks carrots and other vegetables during storage. The skills he developed then were put to good use during the following winterim semester when he was given an assistantship in the department of plant science to help teach a laboratory class on plant microtechniques.

Starrett spent the 1987 winter session commuting between Newark, Del., and Kennett Square, Pa., where he worked in Longwood Gardens' greenhouse under the supervision of gardeners responsible for the orchid collection.

Eventually, Starrett plans to earn a master's degree and then teach ornamental horticulture and greenhouse management at a vocational high school or college. He also hopes to have a small greenhouse of his own where he can grow and sell orchids, primarily as a hobby.

Both of Starrett's parents are teachers. He attributes some of his interest in horticulture to the encouragement given to him by his father, a teacher of biology and greenhouse management in a Ewing, N.J., high school.

Starrett has already chaulked up many hours of practical experience in pursuit of his love affair with plants. He spent the summer preceding his freshman year in college as an herbarium intern with the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C., filing, collecting and preserving plant specimens and conducting research on an early 20th century botanic expedition to the Pacific Coast.

In 1984 he worked as a summer horticultural intern mapping and labeling the plant collection on the grounds of the Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plains, Mass. And last summer he worked as a greenhouse assistant grower at the Mt. Cuba Center for the Study of Piedmont Flora in Greenville, Del. He plans to work there again this summer.

Starrett will leave in September for England. While he is abroad, a British student will be studying some aspect of horticulture at an American college or university in the United States on a similar fellowship.

University of Delaware plant science student Mark Starrett heads for England next September on an Interchange Fellowship in Horticulture and Landscape Architecture, awarded regionally to one student in the U.S. each year by the Garden Club of America.

Delaware Extension To Offer Single Parent Program

NEWARK, Del. – The Delaware Cooperative Extension System has been awarded an $8,000 community initiative grant by United Way of Delaware to establish an innovative program for single parents in Newark, Wilmington and Middletown.

Designed to help single parents master management and communication skills, the extension program will also involve volunteers from community organizations and church groups. A pilot program has already begun in Newark. Dates and locations for sessions in the other two communities will be announced later.

Debbie Amsden, New Castle County extension home economist who developed the program for the three communities, says single parents and their children will be invited to attend four weekly sessions that will include a meal followed by group discussions. Community volunteers will prepare the meal and plan special activities for pre-school children during the discussions. School-age children can opt for homework assistance or take part in a children's discussion group.

"The program is designed to make it as easy as possible for single parents to attend. Both a meal and child care will be provided," Amsden says. She adds that the program is appropriate for single mothers or fathers, whether they are single by choice, divorce, separation or widowhood.

Over the four sessions discussions will focus on values and goals for the family, financial management, teamwork and time management, and communication skills in conflict situations. Amsden says parents and children will share summaries of their discussions before ending the evening. "We hope this will create openings for conversations on the way home or later in the week," she says.

York 4-H Auction Brings In $4,100

"Pajaro," a registered Paso Fino gelding, headlined the recent York 4-H auction, selling for $525 to 4-H horse club member Tanya Barr. The yearling was donated for the 4-H Center fundraiser by Fieldstone Meadows Farm, owned by Art and Lee Glatfelter and handled at the sale by trainer Bob Kilgore. More than $4,100 was earned through the auction for maintenance of the county's 4-H center.

While a large crowd was on hand for the York 4-H fundraiser auction, few came away any more thrilled with their purchases than 14-month-old Kevin Bupp. Kevin's parents, Larry and Loretta Bupp, were the successful bidders for a lamb ewe, donated to the auction by the George Dutrey family's Honey Valley Farms.

WS-277 (New for 1986) Group 2 Maturity

This new narrow leaf soybean is a late Group 2 Maturity. It matures about 3 days later than Century Soybeans. It has a white flower and an average height of 45 inches. It has a high yield record and it is not uncommon for each pod to yield four beans per pod. Try some of these new beans. You will like everything about them from start to finish.

WS-344 (New for 1986) Group 3 Maturity

This new wide leaf soybean has looked very good in all our preliminary research plots. It has an average height of 37 inches and stands very well. Its maturity is about the same as Williams 82, but it has been out-yielding them in our research plots. Supply is limited.

WS-380 (New for 1987)

This new soybean is a Group III maturity. It stands very well and has an indeterminate growth habit. It will mature at about the same time as Williams 82 and has been out-yielding Williams 82 by several bushels to the acre. Order early on these soybeans. Supply is limited.

All bids must be in a sealed envelope marked "Light Towers" and accompanied with a performance bond of 10% of the bid (Cashier's check or certified check)

All bids must be in the Fair Office by 4 00 P M , Monday, April 13, 1987 The Board of Directors reserve the right to accept or reject any or all bids

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Let Eby Custom Build One For You!

When you've got livestock to haul, you don't want to worry about your trailer.

Consider one made of aluminum from M.H. Eby. They're built tough - tough enough to stand up to years and years of hauling. And they're nearly maintenance free. They'll never come apart at the seams or need expensive paint jobs.

Eby custom builds all-aluminum livestock trailers in nearly any size or shape - from bumper hitch models like the one on the left to 48' possum bellies. Please give us a call or write for more information.

Grain & Livestock Bodies

Bigger than ever, Better than ever. A full 96" wide...

"Clean Flow"
Aluminum Bodies

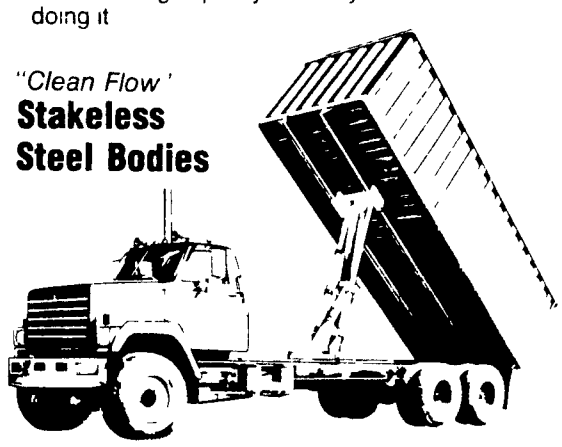
- Standard three-section full opening rear doors and swing-out header
- Greater inside dimensions and light weight give you more hauling capacity and let you save fuel while doing it

"Clean Flow"
Stakeless Steel Bodies



- 52 or 60" heavy gauge sides give you more hauling capacity for grain, sugar beets and other commodities

HOMETOWN ECONOMICS

By Walt Buescher

A Seven Part Series

Editor's Note: We first heard this humorist give this speech at the ADA-DC Annual Meeting in Syracuse, N.Y. but Walt Buescher of Pigeon Forge, Tennessee has spoken in Pennsylvania a good many times too. He always gives farm and agri-business groups the same message, a message that he calls "Hometown Economics," but which can best be described with the words, "cut back or sell." We'll be running a series of articles that make up that speech here in LANCASTER FARMING.

Buescher spent 39 years with Allis-Chalmers. His last job there was Sales Promotion Manager and that meant that he was responsible for trade show exhibits at shows like the Harrisburg Farm Show. His entire lifetime was spent in marketing and so it is not surprising that he talks marketing wherever he goes. In 1974, the National Agri-Marketing Association named Buescher their Marketing Man-of-the-Year. In the last year, he has spoken all over the USA, from Lubbock to Anchorage to Upstate New York to southern Georgia. Surely some of our readers have heard his message which is always punctuated with humor.

Since retirement from Allis-Chalmers, Buescher has lived in the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee where he operates a sales promotion firm called Grass Roots Communications. For the last 10 years, he has filled speaking dates for Ford New Holland all over the United States. So, here's Part 1 of 7 Parts entitled: Hometown Economics.

Good evening ladies and gentlemen. It's great to get back here to Pennsylvania, the land that reaches from the Atlantic to the unsalted seas of Lake Erie. I bring you greetings from the land of country ham and red eye gravy, of grits, cornbread, biscuits and collard greens.

Not only am I happy to be here in Pennsylvania this evening, at my age, I'm happy to be almost anywhere. When Motzart was my age, he was dead for 17 years. That's quite a sobering thought. You knew he was dead, didn't you? Wolfgang Amadeus Motzart? If you didn't, I'm the bearer of sad tidings. I put Vaseline on my hair in my college days and it slipped my mind. I don't sleep in the same room with my teeth anymore.

Originally I hail from a small town in northern Indiana, about 20 minutes below South Bend...by telephone. It was a rather small town. A Street was the edge of town. If you plugged in your toaster, the street lights went dim. If you found a cat in our town with a full tail, you knew he was a tourist. If you threw a dog a bone, he'd signal for a fair catch. We had three dogs that were the Fire Department in Bremen. The biggest business in town was a 300-pound Avon lady. In those Depression days, we didn't have much to do so we wrestled with the girls. That's when I found out it isn't whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game.

Then I went to Valparaiso University in Indiana. Valpo is a Lutheran school. We had trouble beating Notre Dame's Protestant squad. I know, because I was the captain of the freshman football squad for three years.

Then I went to work in the farm equipment business in days when rubber tires were brand new and farmers said you couldn't pull the hat off you head with a rubber tired tractor. The President of J.I. Case Company said that it was stupid to buy a tractor that you could stop with a bucket of water. Those were the first days of the one-man combine. Farmers said that wheat had to go through a sweat in the shock... "you can't cut it from the standing crop." Those were the days of the one-man baler that came to us from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. Over at New Holland.

The last trip I made out during my corporate life was to Mankato, Minnesota. I stood in the dealer's store there and a fellow from Texas came in. He was visiting a school mate. He asked, "How big a spread y'all got here in Minnesota?" Oley replied, "Aye got 'bout 462 acres."

The Texan replied, "Why, them little bitty old spreads y'all got here in Minnesota. Why, in Texas we got a spread that takes all day to drive around it on a tractor." Oley snapped back with, "Aye had a tractor like dat vunce too."

Oley had a broken baler part. The parts man asked, "Who broke this?" Oley said it was his hired man. The parts man asked, "Isn't that the same guy that got your daughter pregnant?" Oley replied, "Ya, he's a clumsy son-of-a-gun, isn't it?"

Then we moved to Pigeon Forge in the Smoky Mountains of east Tennessee. We love it there in the hills. We're on the road about half of the time filling speaking dates all over the country. Then I've written a couple of books. And I've made some records, but Oral Roberts was on the flip side and he kept healing the hole, so that didn't pan out too well. My wife and I have a couple of moonlighting operations. We raise seeing-eye dogs for NFL officials, and we make a little chicken moonshine... one drink of that and you lay right there.

Let's get down to business. All of my life, I've watched Uncle Sam trying to get your farmers to raise less food... and all my life he's failed. All my life, I've watched the Russians trying to get their farmers to raise more food... and all my life they've failed. But that's the way life is... we have all of the cars and the Russians have all of the parking places.

The farmer takes on all of the risks every other businessman takes... and then the risks of weather on top of that. Last year it was so dry in the Southeast that the rain only had 30% moisture. We had catfish in the Pigeon River two years old that hadn't learned how to swim. Our neighbor, Buford Barnes bought a bale of hay to prime his rake. Over at Gatlinburg, the trees leaned toward the dogs. Then it turns wet and you need a life raft when you go out with your tractor. You've got to wear boots just to look out the window. We were in Aberdeen, South Dakota last fall when it rained so much. A farmer there told me he had a bucket hanging on the fence post and it didn't have a bottom in it. He came out one morning and it was half full of water.

Yep, every farmer has to have a little of the Mississippi River gambler born in him. It isn't always black ink. Once in a while some red ink crepes in. In the last 4-5 years, there's been a lot of red ink. Some pretty wonderful people on the farm went down the drain. It's not as bad here in Pennsylvania as it is in the Midwest, but it's bad enough.

What happened?

From 1962 to 1972, the farm price index was pretty flat out... a la-de-da curve in the days of dollar corn and $2.50 beans. Then in 1972, the farm price index took off like a nudist spilling hot coffee in his lap. At one point back there soybeans got so high that you could go in a saloon and order a beer... lay down three soybeans and get eight cent change.

What happened in 1972? Do you remember when Earl Butz sold all of the grain and the Butler bins that the grain was in? For the first time in 40 years, the American farmer didn't have a surplus hanging over his heads. The market responded as it always does when there is a balance between supply and demand. There was a slight setback during the 1974-75 recession, then the farm price index took off again and topped out in 1980-81. It's been downhill ever since.

Tony Daughter Tops Eastern Shore Calf Sale

BY SUE CROW

RISING SUN, Md. – The recent Eastern Shore Calf Sale saw steady bidding all morning. The top selling Holstein of the sale entered the sale ring after 11 other lots were sold.

Wengdales Tony Pansy, a Marshfield Elevation Tony daughter, left the ring after bringing the top price of $1,700. She is an April heifer bred in August to Fisher-Place Mandingo. Pansy's dam, Wengdales Bell Kandy, is a Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell daughter who classified VG-86 as a 3 year old.

Kandy produced a top record of 24,259 pounds of milk with 879 pounds of fat in 332 days. She carries a Cow Index of plus 1,160 milk, plus 36 fat, plus 32 protein, plus $122, plus $113 cheese yield, with a CTPI of plus 664. Kandy was on the Locater List Top 5,000 Cows in January 1986 and on the Elite Cow List in July 1986.

Her granddam, Wengdale Kingpin Kaynel-ET, classified GP-80 as a 4 year old. Kaynel produced a top record as a 4 year old of 24,669 pounds of milk with a 3 percent test and 750 pounds of fat in 365 days.

The third dam classified 3E-92 and completed a top record of 25,419 pounds of milk with a 3.6 test and 918 pounds of fat in 365 days.

In Pansy's maternal pedigree, three generation back have produced milk records that averaged a minimum of 4,000 pounds of milk over their herdmates.

Conrad King of Atglen, Pa., bought Pansy from consignor P. Robert Wenger of Quarryville, Pa.

The 23rd animal to enter the ring sold for the second high price of $1,500. This Harmony-Corners Simon daughter was the All-Delaware Heifer Calf at the Delaware State Fair in 1986. Aynestead Drama Simon Gold is a March calf out of Aynestead Columbus Drama.

This VG-85 dam has an incomplete record of 18,477 pounds of milk and 760 pounds of fat in 298 days. Drama was sired by Leadfield Columbus-ET.

Philip W. Pierson from Clayton, Del., consigned this calf which now has a new home in Whitehall at Leonard Pieper's farm.

The Junior All-Maryland summer yearling in 1986 brought the third high price of the sale, $1,425. M. Mitchell and G. Quillen bought her at the Eastern Shore Calf Sale last year and developed her into a show animal. She was bred in February to Whittier Farms Ned Boy. Lady-Manor Trump Chair is a Cal-Clark Board Chairman daughter.

Her Letters Burgov Trump dam, Ladys-Manor Trump Card, has a top record in 229 days of 21,520 pounds of milk with a 3.9 test and 848 pounds of fat as a 3 year old. Card owns a Cow Index of plus 706 milk, plus 44 fat, plus 29 fat, plus $111, plus $124 heese yield, with a CTPI of plus 629. As a 5 year old she classified GP-82.

February Milk Set At $12.42

NEW YORK – Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during February 1987 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.42 per hundredweight, 26.7 cents per quart, the price for the corresponding month last year was $11.84 per hundredweight. Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $12.76 in January 1987. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan does not affect the uniform price for the month of February.

A total of 14,843 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 852 million pounds of milk during February 1987. This was a decrease of 7.6 percent, about 70 million pounds, from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $108 million. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers used 348.1 million pounds of milk for Class I, 40.9 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For February 1987, handlers paid $14.43 per hundredweight, 31.0 cents per quart, for Class I milk compared with $13.43 a year ago.

The balance, 503.8 million pounds or 59.1 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. Handlers paid $11.29 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For February 1987, there was a price differential of 15.7 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

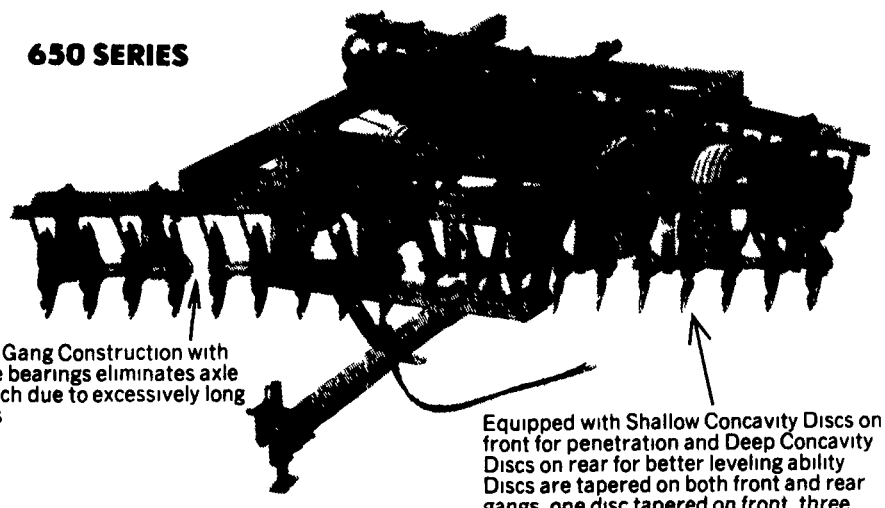
Taylor-Way® HEAVY-DUTY LEVELING OFFSET HARROWS

650 SERIES



Split Gang Construction with more bearings eliminates axle stretch due to excessively long axles

Equipped with Shallow Concavity Discs on front for penetration and Deep Concavity Discs on rear for better leveling ability Discs are tapered on both front and rear gangs, one disc tapered on front, three discs tapered on rear

Adjustable depth control holds the cutting depth constant Then simply lock bar for transport to eliminate wear and tear on hydraulic transport cylinders on those rough and rocky roads

Positive adjustment leveling from front to rear is no problem Weight is shifted by these Spring Rods to produce a smooth finish

OUR OFFSET LEVELS LIKE A TANDEM

- Wide Range of Adjustments
- Tapered Discs
- Disc Concavity
- Spring Leveling Rods

RESULT...

Furrows And Ridging In The Center Is Virtually Eliminated.
A Tandem That Cuts Like An Offset Leaves A Furrow.

PRECISION ENGINEERED... FULLY FIELD TESTED!

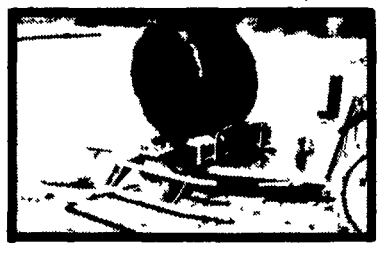
THE NEW ROUND BALE WRAPPER
Round Bale Wrapping — An Economical Efficient Method Of Making Silage



This is the Silawrap system:

- The lift-arm places the bale on the turn table
- Silawrap film is then attached to one of the bale strings
- As the turn table is rotating, the rollers will slowly turn the bale
- The Silawrap film is stretched around the bale overlapping 2-3-4 or 5 times according to the setting of the gears.

Lean, mean pork chop machine.

New Pro:Lean Swine Feeds from Agway can add more lean meat faster. And with today's emphasis on lean meats, that can mean healthier profits for you.

Using regular swine feeds, you can expect a pig to reach 40 pounds by the end of two months. With Pro:Lean, you can expect 45. And during the crucial 4 months of growing and finishing, Pro:Lean adds lean meat fast.

AGWAY® Pro:Lean™

With an additional .1 pound per day weight gained, your pigs reach finishing weight and go to market faster. Up to 10 days earlier than with most swine feeds. And leaner hogs can really help fatten your wallet.

Contact your local Agway store or farm enterprise salesperson for expert advice on your pork production operation, nutritional needs and technical service.

Farrowing Management

Mothering ability is only about 10 percent genetic. That means sow performance in the farrowing house is 90 percent environment and 10 percent genetics. So, if a sow weans a small litter, chances are it's your fault, not hers. If you hope to maximize a sow's genetic potential you've got to provide her with the best conditions possible. Here are a few suggestions for maximizing sow productivity, once she reaches the farrowing house.

Getting the Sow Through The Farrowing Period

Watch the sow for the signs of parturition. In the beginning stages of labor she will become nervous and chew on the crate or pen partitions. A sow in early labor will urinate frequently. She'll often show nest building behavior even when on solid concrete.

Toward the end of the beginning stage you will be able to express milk from the nipples — often it will drip out on its own. At this point the sow is within 18-to-24 hours of farrowing. By now you should have a heat lamp or similar device ready for the baby pigs.

As farrowing approaches, the sow will normally lie down and remain in a quiet state throughout the birth process. During this time, keep an eye on her but do it without startling her.

Most sows complete the farrowing process (from the first pig to the delivery of the placenta) in two to three hours. It can be as short as 30 minutes and in some cases last longer than five hours. Pigs may be delivered either head or feet first. Each pig will have an individual placenta but these membranes are normally expelled after all the pigs have been delivered.

It's not necessary to break or cut the umbilical cord. But if you choose to do so, pull it gently out of the sow without putting pressure on the pig. Excessive bleeding from the cord can be alleviated by tying it in a knot or using a rubber band. For chronic bleeding problems, vitamin K injections may help.

Dystocia—Difficult Births

The average interval between pigs is about 15-to-20 minutes but can be as long as an hour. If the time lapsed exceeds 30 minutes, that's an indication there may be a problem. One remedy to slow births is to use oxytocin. Before you choose this route, watch the sow to see if she's straining. Normally, the sow will not move or strain during the birth process. If she repeatedly pulls her rear leg forward or appears to be in pain, a pig may be lodged, in which case oxytocin may be of no value.

Oxytocin, however, can be helpful during hot weather when sows are often overheated. And occasionally sows get fatigued toward the end of farrowing in which case oxytocin may be useful.

If no pigs are born within 20 or 30 minutes after the oxytocin injection, you may have to physically assist the sow. Thoroughly clean the rear of the sow and your arm. Use of an iodine solution on your arm will help reduce the chance of introducing bacteria into the birth canal. With your arm well lubricated (the use of a glove is preferred) enter the reproductive tract slowly until you're able to grasp a pig. If the sow is lying on her right side, use your right arm and vice-versa. Pull the pig out gently.

High Fever

It's not unusual for sows to run a fever in the first day or two following farrowing. However, if the fever is high enough, the sow will stop milking. Check her temperature at least once a day for the first two days. .

The normal body temperature is 102. If the sow's temperature stays under 103.5, she will generally not have any problems. Temperatures from 103.5 to 105 indicate the presence of an infection or severe inflammation. Consider the use of an injectable antibiotic any time temperatures are over 103.5. With temperatures from 105 to 107, chances are the sow will lose her milk and you should probably foster the pigs on another sow if possible. If the temperature is over 107 the sow is in danger of dying.

Sows Off Feed—MMA

Sows may have little appetite the day of farrowing, but it should return to normal by the following day. If the sow stays off feed and/or has a high fever she may have MMA — mastitis, metritis, agalactia. Mastitis is an inflammation of the mammary gland. Check the udder for red, hard or hot areas. Metritis is an inflammation of the uterus — check the vulva for a brown foul-smelling discharge. A clear or white discharge with no odor is normal. Agalactia is a loss or partial loss of milk — watch the pigs for signs of weight loss, rough hair coats, sunken flanks and diarrhea.

Treatment of MMA once the signs appear will provide limited success. Instead, take steps to prevent the disease. Keep the farrowing house at 65 to 70 degrees. During hot weather some type of drip or snout cooler should be used. Be sure the sow isn't constipated at farrowing. Consider the use of a feed-grade broad spectrum antibiotic. For herds with chronic MMA problems, routine injections of antibiotics may help. For example one program that works for some producers is as follows. Inject 1000 mg erythromycin (5 cc Gallimycin-200) per sow when she comes into the farrowing house. Inject 1000 mg at farrowing and 1000 mg 1 day after.

Vicious Sows

Occasionally sows (more often gilts) are vicious with their pigs. The safest remedy for these cases is to remove the pigs as they're born, keep them in a warm area and with supervision, place them back on the sow once farrowing is completed. If it's not practical to remove newborn pigs, keep them away from the sow's head until she's calmed down. It's sometimes helpful to leave any pigs that the sow has killed in front of her during the farrowing process.

Another approach to this problem is the use of tranquilizers. There are two drawbacks to this. 1) No drugs are specificially labeled for this use. 2) The tranquilizer will have an affect on unborn piglets as well. They'll be less vigorous, they won't nurse as well and they may become chilled. However, a tranquilizer approved for use in younger pigs but sometimes used for sows, is Stresnil Injection.

Older sows that are vicious with their pigs should be culled. Gilts, however, will generally not harm their pigs in subsequent litters.

Common sense tells us that close observation is the best method for maximizing sow performance at farrowing. Watch for signs of labor If possible, be there when the sow farrows. Keep an eye on her temperature. And by all means, keep an eye on the pigs. Next month I'll discuss sow feeding programs.

Better Beef Is In The Breeding, Says New Hereford Group

BY BETH N. GRAY
Bedford Co. Correspondent

SCHELLSBURG — Concepts in breeding and marketing beef to meet consumers' demands for leanness will be advanced at "Family Festival Futurity," an event to be staged July 3 and 4 at Louisville, Ky., by a new organization in which two Pennsylvanians are serving leading roles.

Lufay Anderson Sweet II of Dayton, Armstrong County, is executive secretary and William Gray of Schellsburg, Bedford County, is president of the board of directors of the International Hereford Organization (IHO).

Founded in late 1986, the IHO grew, according to Gray, out of changing consumer patterns and changing breed needs, which some producers felt were not being addressed by current breed associations.

At its first public showing in Louisville earlier this month, the IHO's "Celebration '87" included a consumer-producer conference in conjunction with a competitive show in which some 130 head of Herefords and Polled Herefords were exhibited. Gray reported that consumer representatives emphasized their desire for leaner quality beef; producers agreed that they couldn't expect packers to provide leaner beef through trimming but that they themselves needed to breed and feed for the market demand.

To help identify genetically superior cattle, all entries at "Celebration '87" were subjected to ultra-sound scanning to determine ribeye and backfat measurements. Other measurements were recorded as well.

The grand champion bull, KLC R&S Rambo, a June two-year-old, had a ribeye of 19.1 square inches and carried .25 inch of backfat; he weighed 2009 pounds, stood 63.25 inches tall at the grow bone and had a weight per day of age of 3.12 pounds. He was exhibited by Rattle & Snap Farms, Columbia, Tenn.

The grand champion female, BT Vanessa 403T, a January two-year-old shown by Beartooth Ranch of Columbus, Mont., showed a ribeye of 11.8 square inches with .25 inch of backfat; she stood 60 7/8 inches tall, weighed 1647 pounds and had a weight per day of age of 2.11 pounds.

Building on that first show, "Family Festival Futurity" this summer will include a seminar on lean beef and the health issue, Sweet announced this week. The festival will offer both a junior show and an open show as well as other family oriented activities.

The family is the focus of much of the purebred industry, Sweet indicated, and he said he feels that the IHO's direction and efforts will help family operations continue business in the shrinking pool of purebred breeders.

He explained that by utilizing a program of lean beef genetics, breeders will be able to provide a marketable product more efficiently and at a more rapid rate, therefore at a younger and still tender age.

The IHO is offering a traditional purebred registry for Herefords and Polled Herefords presently or previously registered in any society or registry whose cattle trace back to the English Hereford Herd Book, and the offspring of such cattle. Also, the IHO has begun an appendix registry for the offspring of matings in which one parent is a registered Hereford or Polled Hereford. The appendix program will serve breeders who seek to improve and upgrade their herds by taking advantage of the lean beef genetic pool, Gray suggested.

Progress is under way in developing a program for the recording of growth data for IHO cattle, Sweet said. This program will include such computations as adjusted weaning of yearling weights, and cummulative sire and dam production information.

The IHO's youth program extends junior membership from age 21 to age 25 if the member is a fulltime college student. Adult members are being encouraged to provide sales discounts to juniors, Sweet added.

A video explaining "what the IHO is all about," according to Sweet, is available on loan from his office at Box IHO, Dayton, Pa. A video including the recent consumer-producer seminar is expected to be available soon.

Other IHO directors include: Dr. Dale Marcotte of Denver, Colo.; Doyle Marchant of Yarmouth, Me.; Lyal Fox of Lloydminster, Sask; Dick Winters of Longview, Wash.; George Ellis of Columbus, Mont.; Dr. Stan Coley of Statham, Ga.; Steve Pierce of Prescott, Ariz., and Manuel Acevedo of Buenos Aires, Argentina.

DPI Booster Banquet Scheduled

GEORGETOWN, Del. — The entertainment at the 1987 Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. Booster Banquet will be singer/comedian Mike Snider. This young man from the small town of Gleason, Tennessee has won the National Bluegrass Banjo Championship, has appeared at the Grand Old Opry and is a regular on the television show Nashville Now.

Another highlight of the evening will be the presentation of DPI's Delmarva's Distinguished Citizen Award and the Medal of Achievement Award. The Distinguished Citizen Award is given to a DPI member who contributes time and services to the poultry industry and who participates in civic work and other community activities. The Medal of Achievement is given to a public servant of an agency or of an organization for outstanding achievement and service in behalf of the poultry industry.

The money DPI collects, through voluntary contributions, is used to finance DPI projects throughout the year which include money for poultry and disease research, the promotion of chicken consumption, legislative and public affairs, educational programs and many other activities.

The 1987 Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet will be Tuesday night, April 28th, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, Salisbury, Md. Each donation of $100 gives the "investor" one ticket to the banquet.

Pork Board Awards $2.4 Million For Promotion

DES MOINES, Iowa – Net receipts and producer refund requests during the first two months of the new 100 percent national pork producers checkoff programs were more positive than originally anticipated, according to the National Pork Board which is in charge of collecting and disbursing the checkoff funds.

The Pork Board, at a meeting March 2 in Indianapolis, received a financial report for the month of January, 1987, indicating net receipts for that month were approximately $2.2 million. Figures for December, the first full month of the checkoff, were right at $2 million. Cumulative refunds for the first four months of the new checkoff are running at about 8.8 percent, considerably lower than had been anticipated before the checkoff started. The National Pork Board at a previous meeting had approved a 1987 industry budget of $18 million.

At the Indianapolis meeting on March 2, the Board awarded an additional $2.4 million in discretionary checkoff funds for several specific program and project proposals received from three industry organizations.

The National Pork Producers Council was awarded $1.7 million for work in the foodservice, retail merchandising and consumer information areas as well as coordination, with Iowa State University assistance, of the development of a comprehensive system to measure return on all producer checkoff-funded programs.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board was awarded $644,000 to expand on-going communications efforts with health care professionals, for new product development, to evaluate consumer attitudes about pork's nutritional attributes for use by dietitians, and to help develop a better market for processed meats, particularly in the deli department of retail food markets.

The Meat Export Federation was awarded $50,000 to develop a co-op advertising program for processed and chilled U.S. pork in Japan and Singapore, and to work with McDonald's to introduce the McRib sandwich to the foodservice giant's units in Singapore and Japan.

In other business, the Pork Board reported that 12 state pork producer organizations had taken up the Board's challenge to match dollar-for-dollar up to $1 million, any state association funds committed to the new national promotion effort, "Pork. The Other White Meat." Board Chairman, Virgil Rosendale said the 12 states had committed a total of $361,745, and that with the matching funds from the Pork Board that would mean $723,490 would be added to the $4.5 million originally committed to the promotion project by the Pork Board.

Rosendale said the Pork Board has established a cut-off date of May 30 for its matching fund commitment to states that still wish to participate. He said the Board still has over $600,000 which it will match dollar-for-dollar with any firm commitment it receives from state producer associations through May 30.

Cattlemen Respond To Consumer Demand For Leaner Product

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – People who eat red meat are big winners now that the American beef industry has gone on the marketing offensive to provide consumers with a healthier product.

Today's cuts of beef are leaner, trimmer and a good nutritional buy, says Mark A. Kantor, a nutritionist for The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

According to Kantor, consumer demand for leaner, less caloric cuts of meat is forcing the beef industry to modify its product with new breeding programs. Beef producers are using the breeding programs to bring consumers trimmer animals with much less external fat.

These same cuts of beef also have less internal fat – what we commonly call marbling. But since marbling gives beef its flavor and tenderness, producers are compensating by marketing animals when they are younger, says Scott M. Barao, a livestock specialist with Extension.

Adds Barao, explaining industry motivations: "The beef industry has come to realize that it must be consumer-driven rather than producer driven. If there is no consumer demand, there will be no market and no profit for producers."

For years, nutrition and health experts have been urging Americans to eat less red meat and more fish and fowl. Beef is relatively high in saturated fats – the kind that lead to obesity and heart disease. And though once a household staple, beef has fallen steadily out of favor with American consumers who have been heeding advice to avoid saturated fats.

Consumers are repeatedly told, for example, that skinless chicken breast contains approximately 1/6 the amount of saturated fat as the same size portion of lean ground beef.

But now the beef industry is fighting back, according to Kantor and Barao. It is going directly after those consumers who have an active, healthy lifestyle, telling them in a media blitz of television and print advertising that today's beef is different from yesterday's.

It is the producers themselves who are footing the bill for this costly campaign, says Barao. Farmers and ranchers are now paying $1 each for every head of cattle they sell to support an industry-wide promotion of beef and research leading to a healthier product.

The producers are also trumpeting beef's high protein and iron content – a strong selling point since many Americans do not consume enough iron.

While a three-ounce portion of lean ground beef contains approximately the same amount of protein as three ounces of skinless chicken breast, the beef packs twice as much iron as the fowl, says Barao.

Despite this advantage, the saturated fat still present in beef should not be ignored. Consequently, nutritionists like Kantor recommend that consumers either treat beef as a side-dish or serve it "Oriental style" – in small portions with generous amounts of rice and vegetables.

But whatever size serving they decide on, consumers can look forward to a new certification program for beef started by the Nutritional Effects Foundation. This non-profit organization gives its seal of approval to meat that conforms to stringent standards of health and safety. To receive the Foundation's endorsement, meat must have reduced amounts of fat and be free of harmful drug residues. According to Barao, products bearing the approved seal should be at grocers' meat counters by this summer.

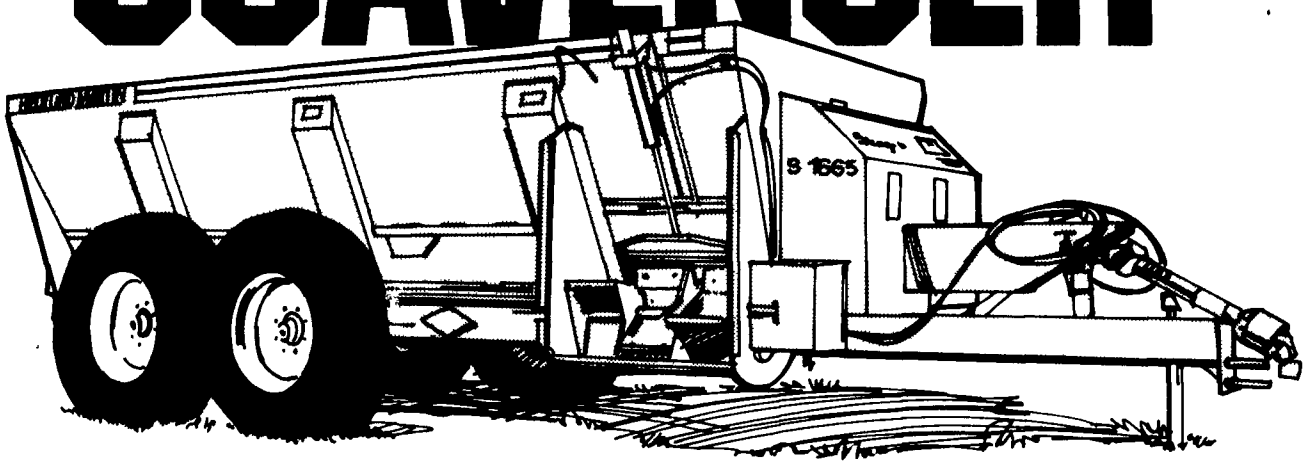
SCAVENGER™



What every ordinary spreader is trying to be.

Years ago, Hedlund/Martin introduced a revolutionary new concept—the Scavenger spreader It was the first spreader specifically manufactured to let you take advantage of today's modern farming practices

And while some other spreaders now claim to give you the same versatility and capabilities you get from Scavenger, in the field—where it counts—they just don't perform like Scavenger

At Hedlund/Martin, we've been building Scavengers for years Prior to introduction, Scavenger spent even more time in research and development Through practical experience we know what works and what doesn't And, frankly, a lot of the features appearing on other new spreaders are simply some of the bugs we worked out of the Scavenger years ago

Scavenger is designed to be versatile It spreads the kinds of manure you handle today—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack—even frozen In patterns perfect for you're cropping needs -- from heavy springtime spreading to fine, even top dressing

There are many reasons why Scavenger is such a hard worker Like the specially-designed, patented square auger to thoroughly break up manure as it moves through the tank Or the unique, Martin-designed Variflo Discharge to give you complete application control. Or any of the other special features that separate Scavenger even farther from the crowd. Like heavy-duty, energy-efficient transmissions to reduce wear and tear on your tractor Full-frame Unibody construction for extra durability And a distinctive tank design to eliminate leaks and improve spread capabilities

There's even a choice of models to meet your operation's individual needs So you buy the machine that's the right size, the right capacity—and most importantly, the right price—for you

For all the facts stop by your local Hedlund/Martin dealer for a demonstration See for yourself why Scavenger continues to be a leader in the spreader category it created

BUSINESS NEWS...

Seeding System For Diverted Acres Saves Time, Money

OREGON, Ill. – Give the busiest people an extra job to do and they'll find the fastest, most efficient way to do it. That's how it is with Dean Wingfield and his diverted acres seeding program.

The Urbana, Illinoisan is both a regional implement distributor and a farmer. Spring is especially hectic for him. Consequently, he has been forced to find a quick yet effective way to handle his diverted acres. He has developed a system that saves him time, money and soil.

"I disk the diverted acres–usually stalk fields–in the fall or early spring," says Wingfield. "Then I concentrate on getting my corn and soybeans planted on time. Once that's done–in late May–I go back to the diverted acres."

Wingfield first hits the diverted ground with a field cultivator, going 3 inches to 4 inches deep. He runs at a slight angle to the stalk rows in order to better cut down growing weeds. "I purposely leave ridges," he notes.

Then he sows oats at a rate of just one-half bushel per acre with a 3-point seeder. "I don't want a heavy stand," he explains. "It's not necessary."

If a farmer doesn't own a 3-point seeder, says Wingfield, he can probably rent one or hire a fertilizer dealer to broadcast oats with a little potash if the field needs potash buildup.

"Right after broadcasting I come in with a Fuerst flexible tine harrow and pull it at a 15-degree angle to the field cultivator ridges," says Wingfield. "By breaking down the ridges I get an excellent seed to soil contact. After that pass with the harrow I have a nice level field and get an adequate stand.

"I also use that harrow to incorporate chemicals behind a field cultivator and to prepare a corn and soybean seedbed. Some farmers pull it behind a drill when drilling tilled or no-till soybeans and for pasture renovation. All those other uses spread its cost."

About a month after seeding the oats, Wingfield sprays 2, 4-D to kill broadleaf weeds. "Grass is not a problem and what does come up helps hold the soil," says Wingfield. "But broadleaves can cause trouble."

By late July or early August, as the oats start to turn color and begin to mature, Wingfield disks them under. "Then within seven days, assuming adequate moisture, I have a nice second crop of oats germinating," he points out. "They give me a great fall-winter cover crop."

Besides saving time (only a few trips over the field are needed), money (less than $25/acre invested) and soil (no erosion with a good stand), Wingfield's program does not require purchase of a mower to clip the diverted acres. "I use all existing equipment," he says.

He does the whole procedure for only $24 per acre even if you include power, machine, fuel and labor charges for each trip (2 diskings, $12.00; field cultivating, $5.50; broadcast seeding, $1.50; harrowing, $1.75; and spraying 2, 4-D, $3.25 = $24.00).

If you figure machine costs only, the expenses are: 2 diskings, $4.00; field cultivating, $1.50; broadcast seeding, 15 cents; harrowing, 50 cents; and spraying, 75 cents = $6.90.

Both sets of costs are from the University of Illinois custom rate guide.

Atlantic Breeders Posts Successful Year

LANCASTER – Atlantic Breeders Cooperative posted a successful year in 1986, recording a $315,887 profit for its members.

The healthy financial report, presented at the cooperative's annual meeting in Lancaster March 18, means Atlantic has completely recovered from a slump in profits in 1983 and 1984, said financial director David Mellinger.

Atlantic's directors believe the co-op's success is the result of wise planning. "Last year didn't just happen," said David Slusser, president of Atlantic's board of directors. "We're where we are because of planning...and if we want to be here in the future, we have to be scanning the horizon."

Slusser attributed Atlantic's success in 1986, in part, to membership in Federated Genetics. Atlantic, Louisiana, and Eastern formed the federation in late 1985,

Federated established a 150-sire progeny test program, with Atlantic continuing to conduct a sampling program in the Holstein breed and an increased program in other breeds. The three partners have developed a complete semen exchange program with resulting cost savings and greater efficiency of sire use. Atlantic members benefit from a wider choice of sires at low cost.

In reviewing the organization's financial records, general manager Harry Roth noted that total revenue from member sales has increased substantially since 1983. In that year, he said, member sales accounted for 68.7 percent of total revenue. That figure jumped to just over 82 percent in '86.

In sales, the co-op saw a 5.5 percent increase in overall unit sales and a 21.8 percent increase in direct herd unit sales. First service units dropped 1.8 percent and total market penetration increased 4 percent, Roth reported.

"The year turned out to be a whole lot better than many of us anticipated," he said.

Atlantic employees made member service a top priority last year, Roth said. A survey of member needs showed that farmers continue to be most interested in getting their cows bred economically with the best service and genetics available, Roth reported.

During 1986 the co-op added three service units and expanded its Linear-Mate service program. A member awareness campaign included barn meetings, bull flyers and printed materials, cooperative education programs and Resource/Promotion Committee support.

Roth outlined trends in genetics. "In the last 10 years, we have made more progress genetically than in the 30 preceeding years," he said. Dairymen are making more profound breeding selections and are considering more variables than they once did."

Honors Dr. Richard Adams

Atlantic Breeders honored Extension dairy science specialist Dr. Richard Adams for his support and for his contributions to the A.I. industry.

Adams began his career at Penn State as an assistant professor in charge of dairy cattle nutrition education programs. He was promoted to associate professor in 1960 for his work in developing the Penn State Unit Demonstration Farm Program, and to full professor in 1966 for developing the college's Forage Testing Service and the Least Cost Ration Formulation Program.

More recently, Adams developed the NIR Mobile Van unit for forage testing and feed programming and for developing computer programs for ration balancing and feed programming.

Recognized as a national authority on animal nutrition, Adams has received numerous awards for his contribution to the dairy industry.

Elects Directors

The board of directors re-elected last year's slate of officers. President is David Slusser, Crawford Counnty; vice president, James Kreider, Lancaster County; secretary, Clyde Martin, Lancaster County; and treasurer, Clyde Robison, Washington County.

Atlantic Breeders Cooperative president David Slusser congratulates Dr. Richard Adams. The co-op honored Adams for his support and his contributions to the A.I. industry.

Farm Credit Stockholders Discuss Merger

The Farm Credit System

Farm Credit News

BALTIMORE, Md. – Directors and stockholders of the Baltimore Farm Credit District Banks and Associations met last week in Washington, D.C. to hear year-end operating reports and panel discussions, speeches and presentations addressing current conditions and future plans for the District. In the forefront, a plan for the merger of the District's 52 separate Associations into one Federal Land Bank Association and one Production Credit Association shows the District's willingness to adapt to changes underway in the financial services industry.

While local directors reviewed proposals to merge all 52 Associations into two associations they were able to discuss different merger plans with representatives from other Farm Credit Districts who have already gone through similar processes. The encouragement and support from these representatives from the Districts of St. Louis, Missouri, Columbia, South Carolina and Louisville, Kentucky gave Association directors in the Baltimore District the opportunity to benefit from the merger experiences arising from other Districts' efforts. "One has to remember that all of these discussions are born out of our commitment to maintain strong and reliable lending institutions and provide the best possible service at competitive prices," lenders that reflects the strength of this District's agricultural community and will assure success and a brighter future for agriculture."

Before assuming his current position in March 1986, Dr. Hood was on the faculty of Cornell University for 18 years. Most recently, he was Director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva.

The monthly session will be held at the Berks County 4-H Community Center in Bern Township on the county welfare tract, beginning at 7:44 a.m. and ending promptly at 9:00 a.m.

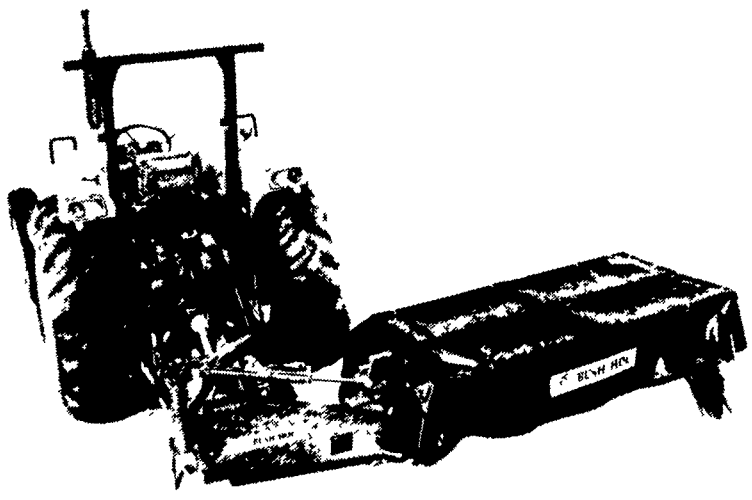
Bush Hog Mowers Built For Speed, Durability

MOBILE, Ala. – The Bush Hog HM Series hay mowers are designed to cut a wide variety of grasses quickly and to provide years of dependable service, even when used on rough terrain, according to Robert O. Moore, vice president-sales.

"These mowers can easily cut at ground speeds in excess of 10 mph," Moore said. "And they are protected against damage from and provide excellent cutting in adverse conditions such as tangled or matted grasses, groundhog mounds and rough terrain."

The cutter bar is comprised of a series of disks that rotate at 3,000 RPMs for clean, fast cutting and an outside swath board is provided to divide the cut crop from the uncut crop. The disks are propelled individually and each unit is filled with grease and sealed to eliminate maintenance problems.

The flotation assembly acts as a lower and upper horizontal member stop and provides excellent flotation over rough terrain. Breakaway protection is supplied by two tension springs – there are no shear bolts to replace or friction plates to rust. The banded power belts on Bush Hog hay mowers are easily replaced and they are fully-enclosed for protection from damage.



Bush Hog mowers feature replaceable lower linkage pins and extra heavy horizontal members.

Bush Hog is a division of Allied Products Corporation, which also owns the White, New Idea, Kewanee and Lilliston farm equipment companies. In addition to its traditional lines of cutters, loaders and other tractor implements, the company markets one of the nation's most extensive line of implements used with three and four wheel all terrain vehicles, including insecticide sprayers, mowers, fertilizer spreaders and material handling equipment.

St. Louis To Host First Corn-Use Seminar

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – A major conference designed to explore various ways of utilizing corn, is expected to attract a widely diverse group of scientists, academia and entrepreneurs.

The First Annual National Corn Utilization Conference, set for June 11 and 12 at the Stouffer Concourse Hotel in St. Louis, is a joint effort of the National Corn Growers Association, St. Louis, and Funk Seeds International, Bloomington, IL.

Advances in biotechnology and material science related to carbohydrate feedstocks will be presented and discussed in the following three breakout sessions:

- Materials and biodegradables – chaired by Professor Ramani Narayan, Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN.
- Chemical feedstocks – chaired by Dr. Charles D. Scott, Senior Research Fellow, Oakridge National Laboratory, Oakridge, TN.
- Ethanol – chaired by Dr. Lawrence R. Hudson, Senior Project Manager, New York State Energy Research & Development Authority, Albany, NY.

"We welcome the attendance and participation of anyone interested in identifying, researching, developing and putting into practice new uses and markets for the nation's abundant corn supply," says NCGA Research Director Dan Ragsdale. "We consider each conference attendee to be a major contributor and benefactor in this gathering."

Registration fees for the conference are $125 if postmarked by May 11, and $175 on site at the conference. Two luncheons, a dinner, a cocktail hour and a complete copy of the conference proceedings are covered by the registration fee.

For a registration form and conference agenda, contact: Dan Ragsdale, Research Director, National Corn Growers Association, 1000 Executive Parkway, Suite 224, St. Louis, MO 63141 or phone 314/275-9915.

Brook Lawn Tops State In NCGA Contest

LANCASTER – Brook Lawn Farms won first place in the Pennsylvania, irrigated division of the 1986 National Corn Growers Association yield contest. Roy and James Erb earned the honor with DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics hybrid DK636, which yielded 128.33 bushels per acre.

The Erbs planted the field on May 6, 1986, in 32-inch rows at a rate of 27,000 seeds per acre. The crop was harvested on Oct. 10, with a moisture content of 25.9 percent.

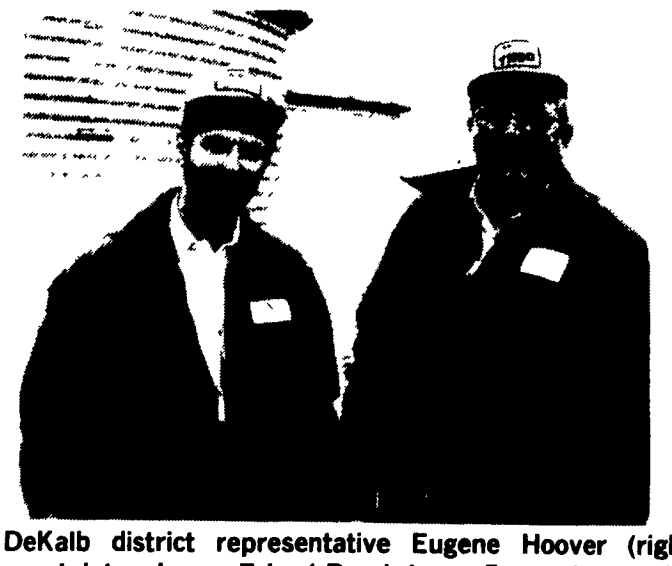
In addition to field corn, James and his father, Roy, produce 60 acres of sweet corn, three acres of strawberries and peas, 10 acres of tree fruit and 1.5 acres of pumpkins for their retail roadside market. Roy has been farming for 49 years and Jim for 15 years.

"The Erbs are to be congratulated on their winning yield," says Ed Deane, Corn Product Manager for DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics. "We recognize them as successful producers and agricultural leaders."

Also earning state honors in Pennsylvania was Kervin Zimmerman of Myerstown, who placed second in the no-till, non-irrigated division with DeKalb-Pfizer hybrid DK656 which yielded 171.05 bushels per acre.

The NCGA has sponsored the yield contest for nearly 30 years. This year's 1,724 completed entries represented 51 seed companies and 215 hybrids. "The main thrust is to encourage development of new and improved management techniques and show the importance of using solid cultural practices in U.S. corn production," explains Larry Rus, Public Relations Director for NCGA.

NCGA is a 19-state commodity organization involved in improving the profitability of corn production through research, market development and government relations programs.



DeKalb district representative Eugene Hoover (right) congratulates James Erb of Brook Lawn Farms for posting Pennsylvania's top corn yield in the irrigated division of NCGA contest.

Soybean Trial Results Announced

NEWARK, Del. – Results of the University of Delaware's 1986 soybean variety performance tests are now available. Trials were conducted last year on 70 varieties and advanced lines being developed by commercial seed companies and public institutions. A report on those results has now been published.

Entries representing three maturity groups were compared with varieties currently being grown in the state. To see how varieties performed on different soil types, tests were conducted at four sites – the university's Research and Education Center near Georgetown, Murray Farms near Selbyville, Fifer Orchards at Woodside and the Kohl Farm near Middletown. Each entry was rated for maturity, height, lodging and seed quality.

Despite dry periods at all locations, yields were better than expected. The average for entries within each maturity group at each test site provides an indication of overall growing conditions at that location. Since rainfall and other factors varied greatly among test sites last summer, growers are advised to use caution when making yield comparisons between locations or maturity groups. A table showing the three-year (1984-1986) average yields of 29 of these varieties is included in the report.

Copies of "1986 Delaware Soybean Variety Performance Tests" are available from county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (697-4000) and Georgetown (856-7303).

Case Adds 5 Steiger Models To Tractor Line

RACINE, Wisc. — With the application of Steiger Tractor Inc., Fargo, North Dakota, Case IH has significantly expanded its line of high-horsepower, four-wheel-drive agricultural tractors. Steiger, known for its premier line of large tractors, brings five models to the Case IH line.

Case IH dealers will receive Steiger tractors painted red with new model numbers and the Case IH logo. Steiger dealers not holding Case IH contracts will continue to receive the tractors bearing the Steiger logo, model name and green color.

The Steiger line is being upgraded with several new features and options including:

- PTO available as an option on all models;
- a new cab with gray interior and standardized features;
- increased level of instrumentation for operator convenience.

The addition of the five Steiger models to the current Case IH line gives Case IH a variety of both rigid-frame and articulated tractors to fit any farming application.

Case IH Model 9110 Tractor (Steiger Puma 1000)

The articulated Case IH Model 9110 tractor, with 190 engine horsepower and optional steerable front axle, brings high power to farming operations with its new Case IH 8.3-liter, 505-cubic-inch engine. Yet the articulated frame allows the operator to handle tight turns at the end of rows.

The 9110 features a steerable front axle option that allows a turning radius of 12.5 feet and a standard turning radius of 14.5 feet.

Case IH Model 4494 Tractor

With a 213 engine horsepower turbocharged engine, the Case IH Model 4494 tractor offers many of the features found in the largest four-wheel-drive tractors, yet in a smaller package.

Case IH Model 9310 Tractor (Steiger Wildcat 1000)

This addition to the Case IH line brings another option to the four-wheel-drive series. An optional steerable front axle allows the operator to make steering corrections during delicate planting and cultivating operations and provides the tightest turning radius of any four-wheel-drive tractor in this engine horsepower category. It also features a 220 engine horsepower Case IH 8.3-liter 505-cubic-inch diesel engine and variable tread settings with a single reduction inboard planetary axle.

Case IH Model 4694 Tractor

With a 261 engine horsepower turbocharged diesel, the Case IH Model 4694 tractor provides operator efficiency and power in the mid-sized four-wheel-drive range. A wide variety of optional wheels and tires allow farmers to meet the requirements of any job application.

Case IH Model 9150 Tractor (Steiger Cougar 1000)

The 280 engine horsepower 9150 is designed for years of rugged performance. A full array of halogen lights allows excellent visibility during night operations.

Other features include an optional 11,500 pound capacity three-point hitch that can be electronically set to return to the position of choice, and a 170-gallon fuel tank to keep the operator in the field longer.

(Turn to Page D11)

Case greatly expanded its line of high horsepower tractors with the acquisition of Steiger Tractor Co. Shown is Case IH Model 9130, previously the Steiger Wildcat 1000.

Md. Field Day To Focus On Grazing System

BELAIR, Md. — Waffle Hill Farm is gearing up to host an Agricultural Field Day for all who are interested on Saturday, April 4, 1987 starting at 9 a.m. Events have been planned throughout the day and several exhibits will be on display.

The Field Day centers around pasture and grazing management. A year-round grazing system will be in place and the fencing equipment needed for the system will be up for investigation.

A no-till seeding demonstration using a band application of herbicides and three varieties of legume will be in place. Red clover, birdsfoot trefoil, and a new variety of creeping rooted alfalfa have been used to see how they are adapted to this area of Maryland.

The Penn State Forage Testing Van will also be on the scene to test forage samples for anyone who brings in a sample. The test will be $12 per sample and results will be available within the hour.

Fallston General Hospital will have members present to take blood samples for cholesterol testing. This has been included as an added attraction for the health conscious consumer.

Specifically for the beef producer will be a demonstration of the computerized Beef Cattle Performance Testing Program. This program allows for performance results as soon as the animals are weighed at the farm. Thus, selection decisions can be made immediately following weighing.

Participants will also learn how to calibrate a manure spreader with greater accuracy to obtain optimum nutrient benefit.

Aside from these demonstrations, all will be invited to see and discuss performance records on a top quality Angus herd and to visit many other exhibits which will be set-up. The Harford County 4-H Livestock Club will be selling lunch.

Waffle Hill farm is located on Cool Branch Road which is accessible from Route 136 or Glenville Road in Churchville.

ASA Finds Expanding Soybean Market In Asia

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A sleeping giant is stirring. With growing economies in many Asian countries comes growing demand for agricultural commodities, including soybeans. These countries are poised to follow the lead of Japan to become important customers for U.S. soybeans.

Recently, Soybean Association leaders called on government and soybean industry officials in Hong Kong, China, Singapore, Indonesia, and Japan. Their objective was to evaluate soybean market potential in Asia. Their report shows a booming economy hungry for soybeans to supply the feed needs of growing poultry, dairy, swine and aquaculture industries.

Participating in the fact-finding mission were David Haggard, president of the American Soybean Association and a Steele, Mo., soybean farmer; John T. "Ted" Huser, president of the American Soybean Development Foundation and a Sac City, Iowa, soybean farmer; and St. Louis-based ASA Chief Executive Officer Dr. Kenneth L. Bader.

China: From Competitor To Customer

China is the giant of Asia. It's also the world's third-largest soybean producer behind the U.S. and Brazil. It produced an estimated 404 million bushels of soybeans in 1986. But, after visiting Southern China, and talking with feed millers and government officials, Haggard, Huser and Bader believe China's need for soybeans will soon outpace its production.

In China, the Soybean Association's four-year-old office in Beijing promotes programs to increase domestic soybean demand. That's keeping China's soybeans at home and out of export markets, explains ASA President David Haggard.

"The Chinese are realizing that their 300-million-strong swine industry is going to need better feeds to grow efficiently," says Haggard. "The same is true for China's dairy and poultry industries.

"Everyone we visited was short of soybean meal. And everyone was convinced of its value in feeds," says Haggard. "We learned that China plans to build an additional 160 feed mills to handle the growing demands for livestock and poultry."

He predicts that soon Soybean Association programs in China will not only emphasize the domestic use of soybeans, but also build demand for U.S. soybean imports.

Southeast Asia: Building Soybean Demand

Demand for soybean meal is also increasing in Indonesia and Southeast Asia where Soybean Association leaders saw how soybean farmer checkoff-funded programs build markets one step at a time.

About seven years ago, the Soybean Association's Singapore office staff began poultry feeding trials and other activities to build a basic market for soybean meal in Southeast Asia. Now that poultry producers in Southeast Asia know the benefits of soybean meal, Soybean Association poultry nutritionist Dr. Cristino Collado promotes U.S.-origin soybean meal in poultry feeds. And he is beginning to encourage use of full-fat soybeans — or whole soybeans — in feeds.

ASA's poultry and livestock nutrition programs also help lay the foundation for increased soybean oil demand in Southeast Asia, says Haggard.

He explains that traditionally soybean oil is promoted as a high quality food which offers nutritional benefits to consumers. However, most consumers in Asia are more budget-conscious than health-conscious. They rely on inexpensive foods made with highly-saturated palm oil. As these consumers develop more buying power, they will want more nutritious foods.

Japan: Long-Term Commitment Builds Customer Loyalty

Japan is an example of what a long term commitment in Asia could do for U.S. soybean demand, says ASDF President Ted Huser.

"Since 1956, the Soybean Association has sponsored promotion programs in Japan which have molded it into a major customer for U.S. soybeans. As a result, a one-percent increase in Japanese soybean demand equals more than many markets use in a year," says Huser. "Japanese buyers purchase about 95 percent of their soybeans from the United States." In the 1985 marketing year, that amounted to 165 million bushels, almost equal to Missouri's soybean production that year."

It's no accident that Japan buys so many U.S. soybeans. Huser says that soybean buyers in Japan — and throughout Asia — place a high degree of importance on customer service when they make purchases.

"The Soybean Association staff in Japan is highly respected throughout the soybean industry," says Huser.

Increasing Market Potential In Japan

Karl Sera is the Soybean Association's animal nutrition specialist in Japan. He has been working with Kido Feed Company to promote use of soybean meal feed supplements for dairy cattle.

"Feed supplements are a new product in Japan," explains Huser. "But with Sera's support, Kido recently launched a new product. Kido estimates its 1986 sales of feed supplement reached 18,000 metric tons. And, based on Kido's success, four other companies now market similar supplements. Use of protein feed supplements could increase Japanese soybean demand by 23 million bushels."

NACD Says More Money, Personnel Needed For Conservation Programs

LEAGUE CITY, TX– The National Association of Conservation Districts has released to Congress two detailed reports outlining the critical need for additional federal resources to maintain basic soil and water conservation programs as well as the new conservation provisions of the 1985 Farm Bill. One report deals with manpower needs, the other with funding.

"What we're saying to Congress," said NACD President Clarence Durban, "is that America's conservation districts are not going to stand by and watch 50 years of sound soil conservation work get washed down the drain in the name of budget restraint. These basic soil conservation programs are too important to the long-term welfare of agriculture to be terminated with one fell swoop of the budget pen."

The President's 1988 budget proposal would terminate all conservation programs except for conservation technical assistance, the Plant Materials Center, and the snow and soil surveys. Of further concern to NACD is the President's intent to direct 100 percent of the Soil Conservation Service technical staff's time toward new farm bill programs at the expense of current basic conservation programs.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture George Dunlop, in recent testimony before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture, defended the Administration's proposed budget. He said current soil conservation programs are not a priority of this Administration and further stated that up to now most farmers have not taken personal responsibility for practicing soil conservation. In the past, he noted, farmers who have practiced soil conservation did so because of free government services.

"It's these kinds of statements," Durban said, "that demonstrate just how little some Administration officials know, and perhaps care, about conservation. Unfortunately, the Administration is so obsessed with reducing the federal deficit that they fail to see the long-term impacts and consequences of their actions."

To gain specific information on the apparent manpower shortage, late last year NACD surveyed administrators of state soil and water conservation agencies. Results of the survey estimate over 6,000 additional technical field personnel are needed to implement the conservation provisions of the farm bill during each year from 1987 through 1990. Based on the traditional federal/state/local partnership, NACD is recommending that the federal government provide an additional 2,900 SCS field technical employees to implement the conservation provisions of the farm bill.

Based on an average cost to support each new position, NACD is requesting that Congress enact an emergency supplemental appropriation of $95 million for the nearly 3,000 extra SCS field personnel. The association's campaign has already received support from other conservation groups and key Congressional leaders.

"The farm bill's sodbuster, swampbuster, conservation compliance and conservation reserve programs are the most far-reaching conservation programs we've had in a long time," Durban said. "We were involved in formulating these programs from the very beginning of the farm bill and we would like for them to be implemented in an effective manner. But, it was never our intent to trade in our basic conservation programs for the new farm bill programs," Durban added.

NACD's funding resolution, approved recently by its members, calls on Congress to fund the current basic soil conservation programs and the new farm bill programs. If Congress fails to do so, NACD has no option but to recommend that basic soil and water conservation programs be maintained, and that only funding above and beyond that needed for those basic programs be used to implement the new conservation provisions of the farm bill.

Mastitis Meeting Scheduled

An educational meeting on Interpreting and Using DHI Somatic Cell Counts has been scheduled for Wednesday, April 1, 1987 at the Carroll County Extension Office, 700 Agriculture Center, Westminster. The meeting will begin at 10:00 a.m. and will adjourn at 2:00 p.m., with a break for lunch.

Mastitis - an inflammation of the udder, is a disease that occurs at different levels of intensity, but individual cases can be defined as clinical or subclinical. The clinical cases can be "seen" because it is characterized by abnormalities in the milk such as flakes or clots and the affected quarter may be hot, swollen, and sensitive. This form tends to be an individual cow problem and of short duration.

Subclinical mastitis is more subtle and only a small percentage of today's dairy farmers and dairy employees fully appreciate its prevalence and economic significance simply because the milk appears to be normal. This form is important because: (1) It is 15 to 40 times more prevalent than the clinical form. (2) It usually precedes the clinical form. (3) It is of long duration. (4) It is difficult to detect. (5) It reduces milk production and (6) It adversely affects the quality of milk. Additionally, the subclinical form constitutes a reservoir of organisms that often prompt infection of other animals within the herd.

The Dairy Herd Improvement (DHI) Somatic Cell Count Program is one way for dairy farmers to recognize and monitor the subclinical mastitis within their herd. The meeting is designed to help farmers understand the records they receive from DHI so they can be used as a management tool on their farm.

Dairymen currently using DHI Somatic Cell Count are asked to bring their most recent set of DHI records with them.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service's programs are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, religion, age or national origin.

Zeigler Farm Honored By Adams Conservation District

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams County Correspondent

ABBOTTSTOWN – "Kermit R. Zeigler has been a true steward of his soil." That's how Soil Conservation Service technician William McCleaf characterized Adams County's 1986 Outstanding Conservation Cooperator at the county's Annual Conservation District Banquet held recently at the Barlow Firehall. McCleaf highlighted Zeigler's commitment to conservation, noting that in the past 30 years, Zeigler has put in 188 acres of contour strips, three sod waterways, and over 1000 feet of diversion digs. Zeigler has also laid in over 2½ miles of drain tile on his three farms.

Zeigler and his wife of 49 years, Kathleen, moved to Adams County in 1946 from neighboring York County. Their original purchase was a run-down 133 acre dairy farm in Reading Township. Zeigler remembers, "People said I'd starve up here. If my wife and I hadn't worked and laid things out differently here, we probably would have."

The Zeiglers' original fields were laid out in 12 to 16 acre parcels and when it rained they could watch their gravel-sand topsoil wash off into the Conewago Creek. They also had some red clay spots that stayed wet and never drained.

Shortly after moving to the farm, Zeigler started attending dairy meetings with another local young dairyman in the area, John Keiser. He remembers it was those early meetings and the discussions he and Keiser had coming from and going to the meeting that prompted him to consider implementing the use of the Soil Conservation Service to help him get the full advantage of his farmland.

The first conservation project the Zeiglers undertook was the construction of a pond on their property in 1955. Ponds were generally constructed for water to be used in case of fire.

The plans for the pond called for careful attention to the flow of the waterways on his land. Attention to managing those waterways has since served as the cornerstone for the other conservation practices that he has implemented.

In the early 60s their son, Kermit R. Zeigler, took over the dairy operation and Kermit and Kathleen purchased another 130 acre farm. This property had been left in disrepair and the Zeiglers spent days just cleaning out bushes and trees to determine the boundaries of the fields. Once again they began in earnest to put in strips, terrace and tile on their new purchase. A third propertywas recently purchased that is already in strips, but the Zeiglers plan to tile that as well.

Adams Co. Commissioner Catherine Cowan presents the county's Outstanding Conservation Cooperator award to Kermit R. Zeigler.

Kermit, his son, and grandson now farm a total of 1000 acres. A majority of the fields are in strips. They grow corn, wheat, and hay. They use minimum tillage where possible. Notes Kermit, "The strips are a pain to get into to farm with big equipment, but they sure save our soil. Our terracing saved us tons of topsoil in the flood of 1975."

Zeigler says he has never worried about the costs or time he has invested in his conservation practices, but instead cites the savings of his topsoil and the increased productivity of his land as more than ample cause for his efforts.

Kathleen reflected, "He would have done this anyway. Kermit enjoys taking good care of the land. Tiling for drainage on our farms has made it a pleasure to work those fields now. Before that, someone always had to go get another tractor to pull the first one out."

Zeigler is disappointed that more farmers aren't involved in a conservation plan on their farms. A member of the Township Board of Supervisors, he has seen the conflicts that arise between urban and rural neighbors over commonly accepted farm practices. He feels that farmers who are reluctant to have their farming practices limited by sound conservation practice may someday have even fewer choices as to how they farm and what crops they can plant.

Tissue Test For Sulfur, Then Sidedress

To prevent yield losses from lack of sulfur, growers in the Coastal Plain should plan on tissue testing corn early this season.

"Early plant samples can detect hidden hungers before they hurt yields," says Joe Zublena, corn extension specialist in South Carolina. "If a deficiency in sulfur or another nutrient shows up, growers can make corrective applications at sidedress."

Sulfur deficiencies are becoming more commonplace on grain crops throughout the Southeastern Coastal Plain. According to Zublena, in corn production, sulfur deficiency is the second most common nutrient deficiency found in the Coastal Plain. Nitrogen is the most common nutrient deficiency, he says.

"Sulfur, like nitrogen, is a mobile nutrient," he says. "As a result, leaching can be a problem in the sandy soils found in our Coastal Plains area."

Therefore, in rainy springs most of the residual sulfur is in the clay, Zublena says. As the depth of a soil increases to the clay, the likelihood of a response to sulfur fertilization increases, he explains.

Zublena says a good rule of thumb for classifying soils as sulfur responsive is using a depth to clay of 15 inches or greater.

"On these soils, annual applications of at least ten pounds per acre of sulfur is recommended before planting time to avoid deficiencies," he says.

Bill Segars, extension agronomist with the University of Georgia, adds that chances of a sulfur deficiency are higher in areas where crop yields go up. "Most high-yielding producers replenish their farm land with nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium," he explains. "But many unintentionally neglect sulfur."

Sandy soils that are low in organic matter are particularly susceptible to sulfur deficiency. Sulfur may also be in short supply on farm land where no animal manure is used or where high-analysis fertilizers containing no sulfur have been applied for a number of years.

"Ten to 20 years ago, farmers used phosphorus sources such as ordinary superphosphate (0-20-0-12S) that also contained sulfur, Segars explains. "So every time a farmer applied his basic N-P-K program, he also put down a large amount of sulfur." In the case of ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24S), for example, soils receive 24 pounds of actual S for every 100 pounds of material applied.

"In recent years, however, many dealers have switched to higher analysis N, P, and K sources that contain little or no sulfur," Segars says. As a result, farmers can no longer assume they're getting sulfur in their fertilizer blends.

"If a grower wants to add sulfur to his fertility program," says Segars, "then he should specifically request it." Most universities and private labs test for S only if it is specially requested.

Tissue testing is one of the best ways to monitor need for sulfur, according to Zublena. "The technique is as simple as a soil sample, and about twice as fast to take," he says. If deficiencies are present, early detection and treatment gives the best results, he adds.

When tissue testing for sulfur, Zublena says it is best to pull plants before the corn reaches 12 inches tall.

"Cut the plants off just above the soil line," he advises. "And be sure to keep soil off the stem and leaves." If some soil does get on the plants, shake or wipe off the soil, but don't wash it off because some of the nutrients could be leached out with the water and alter results.

For plants greater than 12 inches tall but not tasseling, remove the highest leaf at the stalk with a visible collar. A minimum of 20 leaves will be needed.

At silking, Zublena suggests tissue sampling while the silks are still green and gathering the entire leaf attached to the ear, removing it at the stalk.

When analyzing results, Zublena says growers should pay particularly close attention to the levels of nitrogen in relation to sulfur.

"For good crop growth, a balance between nutrients must be maintained. If a crop lacks any nutrient then it will only grow until it is stressed for that nutrient," explains Zublena.

Because both sulfur and nitrogen deficiencies look similar in early growth stages, sulfur problems are commonly misdiagnosed and fields are often treated with additional nitrogen, he explains. Corrective applications with nitrogen under these circumstances, however, will not improve the situation. In fact, it can complicate it further.

According to Zublena, in corn — and most other grain crops — there is a critical balance that must be maintained between nitrogen and sulfur. Specifically, the optimum tissue N:S ratio for corn is 15:1. When the ratio widens to 20:1 or greater, sulfur deficient symptoms can become visible.

"Even if nitrogen and sulfur levels are sufficient, your nitrogen-to-sulfur ratio can cause crop problems if it becomes greater than 20 to one," Zublena cautions. Often, this shows up visually as pale green to yellow corn.

"If a plant is yellow and a grower applies nitrogen, he'll

Final Plans For Heat Recovery Incinerator Approved

HERSHEY — Final plans for the construction of a solid waste incinerator at Penn State's Hershey Medical Center were approved by the University Board of Trustees today (March 14).

The board also authorized university officials to obtain bids and award contracts for the project.

George R. Lovette, vice president of business and operations, said the heat recovery incinerator was needed because off-site alternatives for waste disposal used in the past are no longer available.

"Disposal of refuse generated by the medical center had been handled by contract hauling to an area landfill and a nearby incinerator," he said.

"However, the fees for contract hauling of wastes have risen drastically, and landfills and incinerators in the area are no longer available for medical uses."

Lovette said contract hauling costs had more than tripled in the last two years.

Designed by the Office of Physical Plant, plans call for a 5,475-square-foot facility to be constructed on the southwest end of the campus, north of the existing steam plant. The brick and masonry block building will be compatible with other nearby buildings.

"Because of the heat generated, recovered energy will be converted to steam and piped into the adjacent central energy plant to provide an additional energy source," said Lovette.

The incinerator will also have an additional capacity to handle the medical center's current wastes and potential increases in wastes in the future.

The board authorized $950,000 for the project which will come from funds generated by the medical center.

Construction of the new facility will begin in May and should be completed by November.

The sketch plans for the facility were approved at the Nov. 7, 1986, meeting of the board.

Latin American Debt Hurts U.S. Farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In testimony here this week before the Senate finance subcommittee on international debt, chaired by Sen. Bill Bradley (D-NJ), Leroy Watson, legislative representative for the National Grange, explained how excessive foreign debt by Latin American countries is harmful to the American agricultural economy.

"U.S. agricultural exports to Latin American countries have decreased by 34.7 percent from 1981 to 1985. Part of the export loss can be attributed to austerity programs that were imposed on debtor Latin nations to increase exports, decrease imports and facilitate their ability to repay their debts. This policy has caused increased agricultural production and competition with U.S. farmers in world and domestic markets," said Watson.

Unlike U.S. farm debt which has been reduced during the past five years, Latin American debt has increased. Watson said that this increased burden is making economic prosperity for citizens of Latin America and market opportunities for U.S. farmers more difficult to achieve.

compound the problem. To correct it, he should sidedress with a substance that has more sulfur than nitrogen, like ammonium thiosulfate or potassium sulfate," he says.

For best results from postemergent applications of sulfur, growers should use a plant-food source containing the sulfate form of sulfur.

"Elemental sulfur may have a higher analysis than other sources," explains Zublena. "But elemental S can take several weeks or more to be converted into a form that can be taken up by the crop.

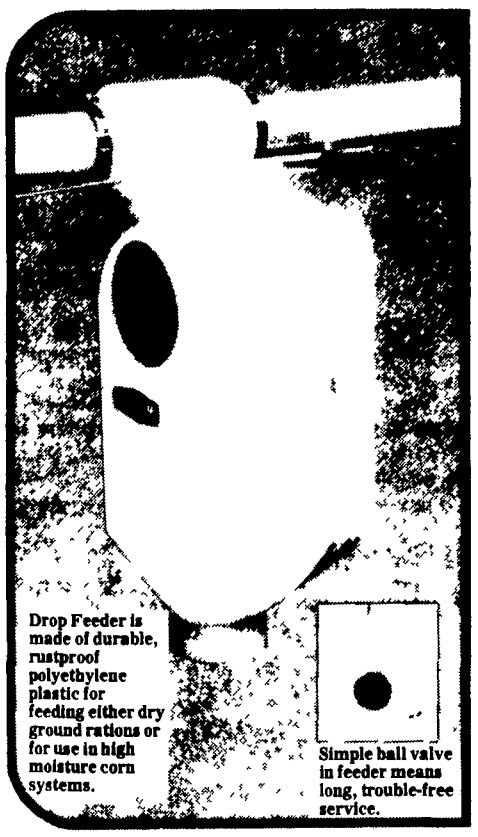
"Sulfate sulfur, on the other hand, can be taken up by the crop roots immediately. Therefore, we recommend this form for postemergent applications."

Sulfate sulfur is found in fertilizers like ammonium thiosulfate (12-0-0-26S). Other sulfate sources available in the sulfate form include ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24S), potassium magnesium sulfate and zinc sulfate.

CHORE-TIME®

NEW CHORE-TIME COW FEEDING SYSTEM

Increase milk production while saving labor, feed



Drop Feeder is made of durable, rustproof polyethylene plastic for feeding either dry ground rations or for use in high moisture corn systems.

Put Chore-Time Cow Feeding System To Work Boosting Your Income

Feeding supplement by hand wastes money two ways:
(1.) Some cows get too much, others not enough – wasting feed and hurting production.
(2.) It's time and labor spent you'd be money ahead to put into management. Mechanize your feeding with an inexpensive, energy-efficient Chore-Time Cow Feeding System. Feed each cow the right amount, as many times a day (to boost production) as you want by automatic timeclock, or by pulling a lever.

Find out about the Chore-Time system – our 10-year warranty on auger – plus the line of feed bins that outshell all others in America because of their built-in quality and long life.

TWO TYPES OF FEED DELIVERY SYSTEMS (FLEX-AUGER or MULTIFLEX) AVAILABLE WITH THE NEW CHORE-TIME COW FEEDING SYSTEM

FLEX AUGER

Ideal For Straighter Runs, Larger Capacities

Highly energy-efficient, extremely long wearing and trouble-free — that's how FLEX-AUGER systems are known the world over.

For most livestock and poultry feeding installations, plus for moving high or low moisture grain FLEX-AUGER is the ideal choice.

MULTI FLEX

For Lots Of Turns, Sharper Corners, Greater Lengths

MULTIFLEX is a new innovation using the same high tensile strength steel auger as on our famous FLEX-AUGER. But, instead of rotating the auger, a MULTIFLEX system propels it within the tube. This sliding of the steel auger means there can be more corners and sharper corners in a system.

There's an added bonus in energy savings: while FLEX-AUGER beats the competition in energy-efficiency, our new MULTIFLEX saves even more energy.

Discuss your particular needs with us to make the best choice of systems for your kind of animals and building layout.

Film Documenting Osprey Available

HARRISBURG — A wildlife educational film documenting Pennsylvania's osprey re-introduction program is now available. The 16 millimeter, 27 minute film (also available in video cassette) includes nest building, mating, fishing and raising young osprey. The film, entitled "Return From Forever," highlights six years of dedication by many volunteers to the re-introduction projects.

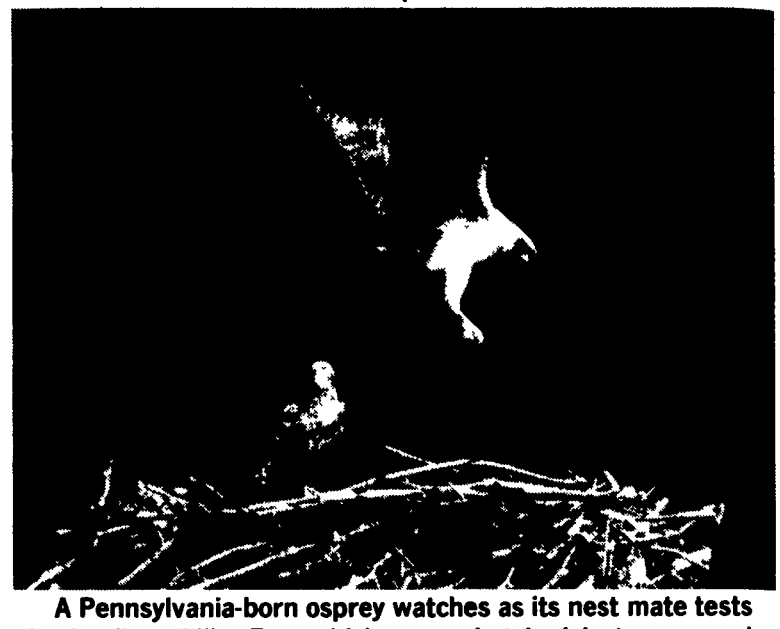
The Pennsylvania osprey re-introduction program has successfully produced four native born osprey in the spring of 1986. The specific community is looking forward with great anticipation to the spring of 1987 for the return of more nesting osprey in Pennsylvania. This history-making program was directed by Dr. Larry M. Rymon of East Stroudsburg University. The Pennsylvania osprey re-introduction project is being recognized by international raptor organizations as a "model" program. This "model" will be used worldwide to re-introduce osprey to lands where they have disappeared.

The program began in the summer of 1980 with the translocation of six young osprey from the Chesapeake Bay. To date 111 osprey chicks have been reared in the Pocono hacking towers. For the time being translocation of osprey chicks has been stopped. Everyone is hopeful that natural reproduction will increase in years to come as the hacked chicks achieve maturity for reproduction.

The project's financial sponsors were the PA Game Commission's Working Together for Wildlife program, PA Chapters of National Audubon Society and the Wild Resource Conservation Fund. Hundreds of hours were donated by volunteers from Bell Atlantic and Metropolitan Edison in erecting nesting poles.

The Wild Research Conservation Fund invested $80,000 in the production of the film. The Wild Resource Conservation Fund is seeking $50,000 in major contributions to help offset the film cost. Frank Felbaum, Executive Director of the fund said, "By augmenting the cost of the film we will be able to free money for additional projects. Hopefully by using the lead grants of Metropolitan Edison of $20,000 and the McLean Contributionship of $3,500 we will meet our goal of $50,000 from foundations and corporate sponsors."

Information about ordering the film and video can be obtained by contacting: Wild Resource Conservation Fund, P.O. Box 1467, Harrisburg, PA 17120.



A Pennsylvania-born osprey watches as its nest mate tests its landing skills. Four chicks were hatched last year, and scientists look forward to more nesting success this year.

Roadside Market Plans Available

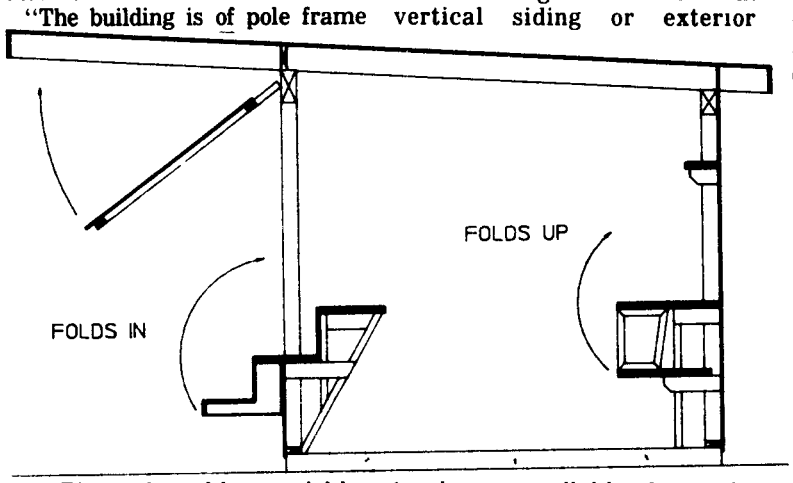
NEWARK, Del. — The summer tourist season will soon be here, and for the roadside marketer, now's the time to think about constructing a small all-weather building to house your business. Delaware Cooperative Extension is offering a plan for an 8 foot x 16 foot roadside stand which may just suit your needs. The design, Plan No. 5983, was prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Plan Service.

"The building is of pole frame and beam construction with a shed roof and should present no problems to someone with a little experience in construction and blueprint reading," says Jim Scarborough, University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer. "The flooring is concrete and can be done by a concrete contractor if you don't wish to tackle this part of the project yourself."

The building can be sided with vertical siding or exterior plywood. Using a textured plywood, such as T1ll, will give a nice appearance to the finished structure, Scarborough says. A hinged front cover and fold-in display stands allow you to completely secure the building at the end of the day. The lower display stand on the back wall folds up to increase working space inside the building when necessary.

Blueprints of this two-sheet plan are available for $1 and can be ordered from: Extension Agricultural Engineer- Plan Service; 058 Townsend Hall; Newark, DE 19717-1303.

Make checks payable to the University of Delaware and be sure to specify plan No. 5983, Roadside Stand.



Plans for this roadside stand are available from the University of Delaware.

Use Protective Clothing When Applying Pesticides

UNIVERSITY PARK — Now that the spraying season is right around the corner, the Cooperative Extension Service wants to remind growers about the importance of proper use and care of protective clothing.

Drift and spills from pesticides are extremely harmful if ingested, absorbed through the skin, or inhaled. Therefore, wearing and properly caring for protective clothing is a must.

Before using protective clothing, inspect it for tears or holes - all skin should be covered. It used to be thought that fabric should be tightly woven, but research has shown that chemical sprays still penetrate closely woven fabric. Therefore, change clothes immediately after applying pesticides, or more often if necessary.

Shirts should have collars and long sleeves; do not tuck the sleeves into gloves, but wear them outside. Pants should be worn outside rubber or plastic boots that can be rinsed after each use. The boots should reach at least halfway to the knee. Do not wear boots made of leather, since leather cannot be decontaminated once it has absorbed pesticides.

A broad-rimmed hat or a hood is recommended to protect the back of the neck, which is very susceptible to spray mist deposition and absorption. Select unlined gloves that do not have a fabric wrist band and that can be washed inside and out.

Store contaminated clothes in plastic containers. These garments, as well as other equipment used during spraying, should not be washed with the rest of the family laundry. Washing should be done in hot water - preferably 140 degrees - because cold water is ineffective in removing most pesticides. Bleaches or ammonia cleaners alone are not recommended because they do not adequately remove pesticides; heavy-duty laundry detergents, however, achieve maximum efficiency and are best for laundering contaminated garments. If contamination is severe, two or three washings may be necessary to assure adequate cleaning.

Items such as gloves, boots, goggles and rubber aprons should also be washed. Be sure that the rinsewater does not cause any contamination problems.

Mixing and applying pesticides can be harmful tasks, but by taking proper care of protective clothing and equipment, growers take smart steps to protect themselves.

Six reasons why more Pennsylvania farmers use Reemay® than any other seedbed cover.

No tobacco seedbed cover gives you more advantages than economical DuPont REEMAY spunbonded polyester Here's why

1. Low cost. REEMAY is one of the lowest-cost covers around
2. Less work. REEMAY is easy to put down It's just-right weight makes handling easy It stakes down securely, resists "ballooning" in wind
3. Low risk. REEMAY is porous Air and moisture pass freely through, reducing danger of too much heat build-up
4. Excellent growth and vigor. Tests by a major U S school of agriculture show that you get large, hardy plants, because distribution of heat and moisture is even with REEMAY seedbed covers
5. Maximum number of transplants. The porosity of REEMAY assures uniform wetting, fewer bare spots and even germination throughout the bed
6. Withstands the elements. REEMAY won't rot, shrink or mildew

New Rural Crime Program In Adams Co.

The Adams County Farmers' Association announces a new program designed to help deter rural crime.

The Property Protection Program will pay a reward of up to $500 to anyone providing information that leads to an arrest and conviction for arson, theft, criminal mischief, burglary, robbery, or criminal trespass involving a farmers' asssociation member's property.

Protected property will be identified with a red and white weather-proof sign provided by the county farmers' association to members for $1.00 each.

John Hess, President of the Adams County Farmers-Association, said, "We're very enthusiastic about this new program. It is not only another great benefit for our members, but it's also an effective way to help prevent crime in the country."

The Adams County Farmers' Association with its nearly 900 farm families is a part of the statewide Pennsylvania Farmers' Association which represents over 23,400 member families in 54 county associations.

Manure Spreader Fact Sheets

NEWARK, Del. – Calibrating a manure spreader is a simple management practice that can help farmers save hundreds of dollars.

If farmers know the application rates of a spreader, they can apply the correct amount of manure to meet crop needs. By doing this, input costs are cut, profits are increased and the chance of groundwater contamination is reduced.

Fact sheets describing two spreader calibration procedures are available from the Delaware Cooperative Extension System. Procedure I explains how to calibrate for solid and semisolid manure. Procedure II describes a method of calibrating for liquid manure.

To obtain copies of either fact sheet, contact Mark Isaacs, Extension Assistant, University of Delaware Research and Education Center, R.D. 2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947 (856-7303), or J. Ross Harris Jr., University of Delaware Extension Environmental Quality Specialist, R.D. 1, Box 658, Dover, DE 19901 (697-4000) or call any extension office.

No-till Rentals Available In Montgomery Co.

CREAMERY – The Montgomery County Conservation District will have the latest no-till planting equipment available to assist county farmers in reducing soil erosion this year. "The equipment is primarily for demonstrational purposes, but each acre no-tilled means less topsoil being washed away," says Edward Brzostek, district conservationist for the USDA, Soil Conservation Service. No-till planting means planting without plowing and disking and does not expose soil to rainfall and erosion. Herbicides are used to control unwanted vegetation just as in conventional farming. The no-till equipment available for leasing is as follows: 10-foot wide drill - 7 inch row spacing for $9/acre; 4-row cornplanter - 30 inch row spacing for $9/acre; 4-row cornplanters- 30 inch row spacing for $9/acre; 6-row cornplanter- 30 inch row spacing for $11/acre.

The 6-row cornplanter will be equipped to handle liquid fertilizer while all others will use dry fertilizer. The program not only encourages the farmer to try no-till, but also gives him a first hand look at how the latest planters work before he buys his own.

Last year, 1700 acres were no-tilled through the District's program with an estimated soil savings of 7,000 tons; while not all of the 7,000 tons would have reached the stream, most still would have been washed off the crop field.

For more information on the no-till equipment program and scheduling, call the USDA, Soil Conservation Service at 489-6071.

In an effort to reduce soil erosion, the Montgomery Co. Conservation District will be offering a variety of no-till equipment on a rental basis.

Crop Deficiencies Tied To Soil pH

NEWARK, Del. — Zinc and manganese deficiencies in Delaware crops are seldom due to shortages of these micronutrients in the soil, according to a researcher at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station.

The real culprit is high pH caused by overliming, says Dr. J. Thomas Sims, director of the university's soil testing laboratory. To help farmers determine their micronutrient needs the laboratory includes manganese and zinc as parts of its routine commercial soil test at no extra cost.

"The availability of manganese for crop use is directly related to soil pH and the level of extractable manganese in the soil," says Sims. "In almost all cases, deficiency is caused by too high a pH due to overuse of lime."

Lime is often used on Coastal Plain soils, such as those in Delaware, to raise soil pH in order to enhance the availability of phosphorus, calcium and magnesium, and to eliminate aluminum toxicity. However, overliming these soils can lead to micronutrient deficiencies.

The soil scientist says most mid-Atlantic soils — especially those that have received poultry or livestock manures — contain adequate manganese. But this micronutrient is unavailable to plants if the soil pH is too high. To avoid tying up manganese, for most cropping situations the soil scientist recommends liming to the following target pH ranges:

- Loamy sands and sandy loams — 5.8 to 6.2;
- Loams and silt loams — 6.0 to 6.4;
- Black soils — 5.8 to 6.2.

Zinc availability is also affected by pH, with shortages most likely to occur in crops grown on overlimed soils high in phosphorus.

As for zinc, the Delaware soils lab classifies soils as either deficient or sufficient based on the crop grown, the tillage system, the soil zinc level, soil pH, soil phosphorus level and climatic conditions such as soil temperature in the spring.

"The likelihood of crop response to applied zinc is related directly to these factors," Sims says. "Zinc deficiency in corn and other crops is unlikely at recommended soil pH, zinc and phosphorus levels. An economic response to zinc fertilizer has rarely been documented in Delaware."

Penns Agri-Women Host Buffet For Legislators

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

HARRISBURG — Under the towering, historic dome of the state Capitol building, Pennsylvania foods took center stage last Tuesday, in a salute to National Agriculture Day, celebrated Friday, March 20.

In a celebration of the myriad of food commodities produced within the Commonwealth, members of Penn's Agri-Women hosted a Pennsylvania foods sampling buffet for legislators and staffers.

As Gov. Robert Casey was signing a proclamation honoring National Agriculture Day, the first of more than 400 who enjoyed the buffet were lining up in the Capitol's impressive rotunda area to enjoy the beauty of the state's farm production.

"Our purpose in doing this is to help make our legislators and their aides aware of our varied Pennsylvania food products," noted Ethel Gross, president of Penn's Agri-Women.

The legislative buffet was first held last year, originated by then-president Joyce Hershey, whose husband Art is a Chester County legislator. Joyce had seen similar buffets at civic organizations and thought such an Ag Day approach would be "something positive."

Foods presented at the buffet ran the gamut of classic Pennsylvanian, from pickled beets and eggs to Lebanon bologna. Among the more unusual was a catfish pate, with catfish produced at the "fish farm," which utilizes warm water from Pennsylvania Power and Light's Brunner Island electrical generation station.

Included in the foods donated for the buffet were assorted bolognas from Three Sons Meats and Miller's Country Store, ham from PACMA, cheese from Atlantic Dairy Cooperative and Dairymen, Inc., and pickled eggs from Musser Farms.

Among those donating fresh fruits and vegetables were Brown's Orchards and Retail Market and Phillips Mushrooms, with apple juice from Lerew Orchards. In addition to their catfish specialty, PP&L's hydroponic vegetable greenhouses donated fresh cucumbers.

Rounding out the buffet were Martin and Bon-Ton potato chips, pretzels from Utz's, cookies from the Stauffer Biscuit Company, and Beecher mints. Chairman for Penn's Agri Women's Ag Day buffet at the Capitol was Phyllis Gross, Manchester.

Joyce Hershey serves apple juice as legislators, staffers and Capitol visitors select from a bounty of Pennsylvania food specialties.

Flanked by representatives of Pennsylvania agriculture organizations, Governor Robert Casey proclaimed Tuesday, March 17, as National Ag Day in Pennsylvania.

Honey Loan Period Extended

The availability period to obtain 1986-crop honey price support loans and purchases is being extended from Jan. 31, 1987 to March 31, 1987.

This will better allow producers and cooperatives adequate time to place their honey in position for redemption using the buyback provisions. These provisions provide producers and approved cooperatives the opportunity to redeem outstanding honey loans at a rate that is lower than the loan rate.

The Dauphin County ASCS Office is accepting requests for honey support loans and purchases now through the extended period. For more information, please call 652-8401 or stop by the office at 75 S Houcks Rd., Suite 100, Harrisburg, PA 17109.

Tips For Exporting Livestock Offered

WASHINGTON — What's the best way to send cows to China — by slow boat or air express?

"It all depends on what you as an exporter need," says Martin "Buzz" Fitzpatrick, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Office of Transportation. "There are advantages and disadvantages to each method of shipping. And these are spelled out in 'Transportation Options,' one of a series of fact sheets OT has recently prepared."

According to Fitzpatrick, recent export-assistance programs and a strong worldwide demand for U.S. breeding livestock have generated a large number of requests for information on the transport of livestock for export.

"Many people want information on marketing as well as transportation," Fitzpatrick says. "Our 'transportation tips' include contacts for export health requirements fromt he Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service as well as contacts in the Foreign Agricultural Service for information on potential foreign livestock markets and how to sell in these markets."

The Office of Transportation provides technical services and research on transportation problems for livestock exporters. It has information on transport equipment, recommended handling methods, carrier services and other areas an exporter or potential exporter might want.

For copies of the three tip sheets on exporting livestock — entitled "Where to Get Information," "Transportation Options" and "Preparing Cattle for Export" — contact OT's Export Services Branch, Room 1405, Auditor's Building, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250; telephone (202) 653-6317. The information is also available electronically through the USDA ONLINE service under "Animal Health Information."
